FIRST POST-BOLT OLYMPIC 100M GOLD GOES TO ITALY

Lamont Marcell Jacobs shocks the world with gold in the Blue Riband 100 metres final in 9.80 seconds

THE FINAL: A DASH OF UNFANCIED STARS

The field was filled with a raft of relatively unknown sprinters. Even Jacobs' main claim to fame was an European 60 metre indoor title earlier this year. The 26 year-old made a European record, with American Fred Kerley taking silver in 9.84 seconds in one of the most understated major championship 100 metre races of recent times. Canada's Andre de Grasse got the bronze in 9.89 seconds | P15, 16

SURPRISE: NO JAMAICANS IN THE MIX

- For the first time since the 2000 Sydney Games, there was no Jamaican in the final
- Hot favourite Trayvon Bromell, who was the season-leader coming into the Games, went out in the semis
- As for China's Su Bingtian, he set an Asian record

SINDHU'S HISTORIC DOUBLE

SWAROOP SWAMINATHAN AND INDRANEEL DAS @Chennai

P V SINDHU is the toast of the nation. And why not? The rigours of competing at the Olympics is immeasurable. It gnaws and growls, especially in your head. That ubiquitous word PRESSURE keeps fiddling in every cell of your brain. It's enough to scar you for a lifetime.

Winning one medal at the Games is seen as something improbable, especially in our medal-bereft country. Winning two? Well, nothing short of a miracle. But somehow in Sindhu's world, the word is a misfit.

She has made the moniker 'Big Game Hunter' her own. She may lumber her way into a World Championships or an Olympics, but once there, garbed in an aura of invincibility, Sindhu dredges her way through everything. Sindhu's record since the World Championships gold in Basel is perhaps the most unimpressive part of her career. She appeared in 15 tournaments and managed to win only 23 matches — 1.5 on an average. For such a prodigious talent, the figure doesn't fit in her resume.

It's why she kind of flew under the radar going into Tokyo. Yes, she was a big tournament monster but the pandemic had ensured that she would be coming in with almost zero match practice. Add to that the needless controversies she had to tide over in the last year or so. Other Indian athletes would have possibly wilted. But Sindhu is made of sterner stuff, she doesn't wave the white flag. Her strong mind on those strong shoulders have been companions on this most surreal of journeys.

On Sunday, she used both to traverse past the challenge of China's He Bingjiao to become just the third woman in the sport's history to win back-to-back singles medals at the Olympics. The southpaw had a better head-to-head record but Sindhu isn't one to let that affect her. Not at the Olympics anyway. She smashed, used the effective cross court smash to add to her winners count and induced errors. He was expected to trouble her but Sindhu used her height and reach to her advantage. Just before the end, the sight of He on her knees and looking at the floor wondering what hit her rammed home Sindhu's performance.

She is a generational Olympian from a country that doesn't produce generational athletes.

I had a lot of emotions going through me - should I be happy that I won bronze or sad that I lost the opportunity to play in the final?
P V Sindhu

Proactive approach pays dividends

On Saturday, Sindhu was subdued, as she let Chinese Taipei dictate the pace. But on Sunday, she dictated the proceedings. He Bingjiao wasn't allowed time to breathe. Sindhu also used her height to maximum advantage to smash winning shots

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE

WELL. To borrow a popular soundtrack that made the rounds three weeks ago, is it coming home? Can it really come home? On a night when PV Sindhu assumed immortality on the world stage, the men's hockey team took a giant stride towards destiny and ending 41 years of hurt.

The history is so well known it's written once every four years — eight gold, one silver and two bronze — if nothing else to remind the nation of what their hockey players were capable of. But while living in history books, sepia-toned pictures and grainy YouTube videos has a nice earthly charm to it, history is no substitute for the present. That's why the current iteration's 3-1 quarterfinal win over Great Britain is possibly their biggest win since the 1980 final.

Now's a chance for a young team under a capable manager who has been allowed time and space to create new ones.

Max cluster of Covid variants in 5 dists

RANJANI MADHAVAN @ Bengaluru

THE maximum concentration of the five Covid variants — Alpha, Delta, Delta-plus, Kappa and Beta — has occurred in five districts of Karnataka, according to the data available till July 30, which was shared by the Covid-19 Technical Advisory Committee.

These districts include Bengaluru Urban with 1,035 cases of variants, Vijayapura with 102, Dakshina Kannada with 69, Udupi with 41 and Hassan 36.

Experts in the State Genomic Surveillance Committee said that the reason for the prevalence could be threefold: biological, socio-economic and Covid-appropriate behaviour. In immunocompromised and comorbid patients, the virus uses the machinery of human cells and the immune system to transform itself and get stronger, thereby mutating in 'Patient zero'. P3

No public Ganesh Utsav in Belagavi

The public celebration of Ganesh Utsav has been prohibited in Belagavi as Maharashtra is seeing a spike in Covid cases over the last few days. DC MG Hiremath on Sunday announced that over a hundred Ganesh Utsav Mandals in Belagavi city should not put up pandals or install large idols in public places to celebrate the festival, which falls on September 10. The guidelines have come early as Ganesha Mandals start preparations from now. P2

STATE MAY SEE SECOND WAVE-LIKE SITUATION

Karnataka is very close to a third wave as the effective Covid reproductive number is at 0.85. The moment it touches 1, there will be an outbreak that could be similar or worse than the Covid second wave, warned renowned epidemiologist Dr Giridhara Babu. He also said the State should increase testing, especially in rural areas. P3

3rd wave shadow falls on festivals

Experts say celebrations must be curtailed to avoid repeat of second wave

RANJANI MADHAVAN @ Bengaluru

WITH the third wave of Covid knocking on Karnataka's doors, a host of festivals, like Muharram, Ganesh Chaturthi, Dasara, Deepavali, Christmas and a number of small temple and village festivities, lined up till the year-end have become a cause of concern.

Health experts warned that no large-scale celebrations of these festivities should be allowed to avoid a repeat of second wave of the pandemic.

Dr CN Manjunath, member of state Covid Technical Advisory Committee (TAC) and director of Sri Jayadeva Institute of Cardiovascular Sciences and Research, warned that these festivals could become potential superspreader events if a large number of people are allowed to celebrate together.

"We must restrict celebrations to rituals at temples and other places. It is the responsibility of deputy commissioners to monitor these festivities. Imposing restrictions on the number of people allowed to attend such festivals will not work, as crowds will definitely violate the norms," he said.

Village festivals, especially in North Karnataka, should be avoided as 10-15 villages come together to celebrate with over 4,000-5,000 people in attendance. "Even social and political gatherings should be curtailed," he added.

Dr MK Sudarshan, chairman of TAC, said that the committee has recommended stricter measures in districts with more than a 2 per cent positivity rate. "We cannot allow festivals, fairs, darshans, pujas and public congregations of any sort. People can celebrate within their homes," he said.

People should be alert as neighbouring states are witnessing a rise in Covid cases and it is only a matter of time before the third wave percolates into Karnataka, said Dr H Sudarshan Ballal, member of Covid-19 expert committee and chairman, Manipal Health Enterprises.

"Karnataka, however, has a good vaccination coverage and 70 per cent sero-prevalence rate. Hopefully, the third wave will be limited. Apart from banning gatherings, festivals and rallies, Covid-appropriate behaviour has to be followed," he added.

Already, Dakshina Kannada district has banned public gatherings till August 10, along with a one-week suspension of interstate bus services to Kasargod in Kerala.

Belagavi Ganesha fest to be low-key again

SUNIL PATIL @Belagavi

IT is a tradition in Belagavi to celebrate Ganesha festival on a grand scale every year. But, due to the spike in Covid cases in neighbouring Maharashtra, the district administration has prohibited public celebration of the festival this year too. The festival is on September 10.

In an order on the do's and don'ts for the festival, Deputy Commissioner M G Hiremath said that festival organisers must not set up pandals and install idols in streets.

Only small idols should be installed at temples and houses. Public gathering should be avoided as the Covid-19 threat still persists. Ganesh mandals should also seek permission to conduct the festival from the police department, Belagavi city corporation, health department, fire station, pollution control board and other departments concerned, the order states.

As per the directions of the departments, bursting of firecrackers, playing loud music, instruments and spraying colours have been prohibited during the celebration. The authority has warned of strict action in case of violation.

Hiremath said that various mandals had sought guidelines for the celebration. "Now, we have announced the guidelines. The celebration should be simple and follow the Covid guidelines. The situation can be controlled by strictly following the safety instructions," he said.

K'taka records second highest leopard population in country

AMIT S UPADHYE @Hubballi

KARNATAKA now has the second highest leopard population in the country. With 1,783 the smaller of the big cats in the wild, the State is followed by Maharashtra with 1,690 leopards. Madhya Pradesh has highest numbers of these spotted cats at 3,421.

The report Status of Leopards, Co-predators and Megaherbivores in India, 2018, by the Wildlife Institute of India, released in New Delhi last week, reveals that there are 12,852 leopards spread across the tiger reserves. The population estimation of leopards was done using camera traps.

In Karnataka, Dandeli and Anashi tiger areas, which are now called Kali Tiger Reserve, have recorded 221 leopards. The area has close to 23-25 tigers and is known as the largest tiger reserve of Karnataka. It also has a feasible population of melanistic leopards which have now been counted in the present census of leopards.

Unlike tigers, leopards are adaptive carnivores spread across different forest regions. Both Bandipur and Nagarhole tiger reserves have recorded good numbers of leopards. The report also shows the adaptive behavior of these big cats which have been found in tea and coffee estates. Leopards have also been found in fragmented forests of Ramanagara, Bengaluru Urban and Rural areas.

Officials from Kali Tiger Reserve credited the success in leopard numbers to the work of ground staff. The reserve has one of the most difficult terrains among tiger areas of the State. It also abuts Bhimgad Wildlife Sanctuary and Bhagwan Mahavir Wildlife Sanctuary of Goa.

Dr Vidya Athreya of the Wildlife Conservation Society (WCS) said that it is good that leopards are getting the long-deserved attention. "The focus must be on leopards that share spaces with humans and the importance of proactive measures to deal with conflict," she suggested.

> The density estimate of leopards for Kali Tiger Reserve is 4.81 (0.49). The population of leopards within is estimated as 114 and those using the tiger reserve as 221. The number of leopards using the tiger reserve is the highest in the state. The reasons could be due to the fact that KTR is part of a large contiguous forest area of close to 5,000 sqkm and many leopards with activity centers outside the reserve are using the KTR area. The second reason could be because of the comparatively low density of tigers within KTR — Maria Christu Raja D, Director of Kali Tiger Reserve

Spl exams to be held for Kerala students

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Mangaluru

MANGALORE University has decided to conduct special examinations for its students from Kerala who will not be able to appear for the pending undergraduate semester exams starting from Monday.

Announcing this, University Vice-Chancellor Prof Yadapadithaya told TNIE that hundreds of students from Kerala are studying in various colleges affiliated to the university and most of them may not appear for the exams from Monday as buses between Kasaragod and Mangaluru have been suspended for a week. Kerala students who have already arrived in Dakshina Kannada can appear for the exams. Those who cannot, have the option of attending the special exams that will be conducted once the cases come down, he said.

Safety team to inspect Mysuru Road-Kengeri Line

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru

THE Commissioner of Metro Rail Safety (CMRS) for Southern Circle is set to inspect the Mysuru Road-Kengeri Line on August 11 and 12, said an official release.

The Bangalore Metro Rail Corporation Ltd has also received a crucial certificate for its rolling stock valid for the next five years from a subsidiary of the Ministry of Railways.

One of the stations on Reach-2 line

Managing Director of BMRCL Anjum Parwez said, "The CMRS inspection involves a complete check of all parameters and a study of voluminous documents. Members from the Central team will arrive on August 10 to carry out some checks," the MD said. However, he refused to give any date for opening up the new line. "We need to first get a green signal from CMRS after which we will finalise the date," he added.

The 7.53 km line, which is an extension of the Purple Line, has six elevated stations of Nayandahalli, Rajarajeshwari Nagar, Jnana Bharathi, Pattanagere, Mailasandra and Kengeri Bus Terminal.

BMRCL has also received certification for its rolling stock from the Railway ministry's Lucknow-based Research Designs and Standards Organisation (RDSO).

Daily Starscope

PETER VIDAL

02nd August: I've got some of the latest, far-out astronomical theories for you this week - all from the most up-to-the-minute, revolutionary science. Let's start with the idea that your birth star is the one from which the light you see today was sent out on the day you were born. Confused? Don't be! It's not meant to be simple!

ARIES (Mar 21 - Apr. 20)
You will undoubtedly do best to adopt a business-like stance in practical matters, perhaps because it's far too easy to be sloppy and sentimental. I must say that if you are responsible for people at work, you should show them that you really do care.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 - May 21)
You're about to enter a more secretive phase, so you have a little time left to make those urgent communications and tell people your plans. It may not be that you'll be deliberately keeping information to yourself, just that for some reason the right words won't come out in the correct order!

GEMINI (May 22 - June 21)
You've been in top gear for some time now but, if it were possible to switch into an even higher gear, you'd do so this week. Think ahead and start to fill up your social diary, for friendly encounters will be central to your sense of well-being.

CANCER (June 22 - July 23)
You will have to make an extra effort to see how other people are thinking and feeling. Don't just sympathise - you must also do what you can to reassure them. This means opening your heart to all close partners, and not judging them too harshly. Why not just accept that they feel the way they do, and leave it at that?

LEO (July 24 - Aug. 23)
This is less a time for celebration, more a moment for cautious assessment of your achievements so far. It is, however, a time to continue to lay the foundations for future success. Today's stars urge you to complete all necessary chores, no matter how tedious they seem at first sight.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 - Sept. 23)
The Sun is still shedding new light on a number of partnerships, but not for much longer and soon you will have to stand on your own feet. If you have been delaying deals and personal arrangements, prevaricate no longer. Time does not stand still, even if you do!

LIBRA (Sept. 24 - Oct. 23)
The emphasis seems to be on personal affairs rather than professional, but don't expect other people to come to your rescue. Domestic chores may be especially boring today, but there are signs that relief will be on hand in about three or four days' time.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 - Nov. 22)
I know that certain colleagues have wound you up, but today could be a good time to broach certain practical matters. Don't use too many words, though. Stick to the bare facts and you won't go far wrong. You might even win respect from someone who used to put you down.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 - Dec. 22)
Recent professional setbacks can easily be turned into triumphs. Your best approach is not to confront other people, but to go about your own tasks with as great a dedication to your personal talents as possible. You may aim to impress without showing off.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23 - Jan. 20)
Venus has been bringing its celestial protection to your domestic environment, allowing you to make the most of happy events, and even enabling you to gloss over any arguments. Today you may throw aside the mask of compromise and lay down the law - within reason!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 - Feb. 19)
You're in a long-term phase, one which is characterised by the need for wholesale reconstruction. Perhaps you can move the goal-posts, altering the rules of the game in your favour. You should now be drawing financial preparations to a close and preparing to solicit advice on the next stage.

PISCES (Feb. 20 - Mar 20)
Somebody, somewhere has taken your trust and goodwill for granted once too often. I know this sounds like the story of your life but, if the problem has been financial, I think you will soon be able to redress the balance. You might even make a small profit!

Spike for 5th straight day, DK sees more cases than B'luru

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Bengaluru

THE Covid-19 situation is worsening in Bengaluru as well as across Karnataka, with the number of patients under treatment steadily rising for the fifth consecutive day. The number of active cases statewide, which had fallen below 24,000 on July 24, rose to 24,144 on Sunday. The number had fallen to 22,487 on July 27, after which it has steadily climbed. Active cases on Sunday recorded a growth of 1.46% over the previous day's figure of 23,796 cases.

The recovery rate, which had been steadily improving, fell to 97.91% on Sunday, from 97.96% on July 28.

For the first time, Dakshina Kannada recorded more fresh cases (410) than Bengaluru Urban, which clocked 409. The coastal district has the second highest number of active cases at 2,943, after Bengaluru, which has 8,553 active cases. However, just like the statewide trend, Bengaluru too saw a decrease in active cases till July 27, falling to 8,047, and rising to 8,553 on Sunday, marking an increase for the fifth consecutive day.

Despite the number of active cases rising, the number of fresh cases is not high. Since July 11, the state recorded new cases in the range of 1,000-2,000 daily (except on July 29 when 2,052 cases were added) and for most part of the previous month, the number of discharges far exceeded the new cases — except since July 28 when the number of new cases was high. Health officials are attributing this to the presence of new SARS-CoV-2 variants in the population, even as there is no scientific evidence to suggest whether the present vaccines can provide protection against these.

'Karnataka, just a small tick away from Covid third wave'

CHETANA BELAGERE @ Bengaluru

THERE is a clear trend of increasing Covid effective reproductive number, which is around 0.85 now. The moment it touches 1, we will see an outbreak, similar or worse than the previous wave, warned Dr Giridhara Babu, renowned epidemiologist, and Member, Technical Advisory Committee, during an interview with The New Indian Express.

Karnataka is seeing an increase in the number of Covid cases. Does this warn of a third wave?

When you examine the trend of infection, there are several ways of assessing it. If you examine the effective reproduction number — which was at rock bottom around June 20 — has started increasing. It is around 0.85 now. The moment it touches 1 — which can happen very soon — an outbreak very similar to the second wave can occur. Whether this will be large enough and will have similar casualties will depend on the action we take. It is not so much about the virus, than about what we do now to contain it.

Does the outbreak occur only because of an increase in cases in neighbouring states or the spike within the State?

A combination of several factors leads to an outbreak: Seroprevalance, vaccination coverage and covid-appropriate behaviour. Kerala is not alone in the risk of spreading infection to Karnataka. It can come from anywhere and any part of the world. Once a virus travels to Karnataka, these three factors are important. Many areas in Karnataka have low seroprevalence, which can see a sudden spurt. Even in Bengaluru, there might be pockets with low seroprevalence. Most parts of northern, central and coastal Karnataka will see a high number of cases. Instead of tailor-made interventions, we can have uniform regulations.

What is the status of vaccination in Karnataka?

Many states, including Karnataka, do not have adequate supplies of vaccines. While waiting, we have to micro-plan. We should map all the eligible people, register them on CoWin, and plan when and where they will go to take the vaccine once it's available. Karnataka has done this during elections, so why not for the vaccination?

Seroprevalence survey report submitted to ICMR shows nearly 68 per cent of seropositivity in the State...

I have been part of both national and state serosurveys. Taking 68 per cent as an average based on the results from two districts for the entire State may not be the appropriate thing to do. We have seen great heterogeneity in the way districts are getting infected. In the days to come, I am sure there will be areas with low seroprevalence of less than 30-40 per cent. These are the areas which will see the maximum number of cases.

What are the immediate measures the government needs to take?

The battle against Covid is not like an election where after one event, you get prepared for the next. It's a process and we need a perpetual state of preparedness. That comes from strong surveillance. Karnataka is among states with a good testing record, but still the numbers are not enough. More than 50 per cent testing occurs in Bengaluru and district headquarters. But the focus should be on rural areas which have low seroprevalence.

791 cases of Delta variant found in B'luru

"THIS biological aspect pertains to the origin of the variant and we need to identify 'Patient zero' to know the movement of the virus among people from there onwards. The next is socio-economic factor, which affects the spread of the variant. For instance, Bengaluru Urban and Dakshina Kannada are active socio-economic zones. Some districts such as Hassan may not be active in that sense. But the third aspect of lack of Covid-appropriate behaviour may lead to the spread of the variant," said Dr Vishal Rao, member of the Covid-19 Genomic Surveillance Committee and Regional Director - Head Neck Surgical Oncology and Associate Dean - Centre of Academics and Research HCG Cancer Centre.

Of the 1,035 patients in Bengaluru, 791 have the Delta variant, 143 have Kappa, 99 have Alpha and two the Delta-plus variant. Vijayapura, which stands second, has 94 cases of Delta variant, 7 of Kappa and 1 of Alpha. "The variants can be a natural reflection of the number of cases in the region. But if they are not dominating beyond their proportion, we cannot say which variant has had more impact," said Prof Satyajit Mayor, also a member of the Genomic Surveillance Committee, and director, National Centre for Biological Sciences.

"This data is based on variants detected a couple of weeks ago. We need to look at the proportion of the variants. If we notice an increase or decrease, it tells you if one variant is dominating. This has to be observed over longer periods to know if the current increase is being caused by any particular variant. Low vaccination coverage, less seropositivity and lack of Covid norms will also lead to an increase in the number of variant cases," Prof Mayor said.

Dakshina Kannada, which has the highest test positivity rate in the last seven days at 4.42%, has 48 cases of the Delta variant, 19 of Alpha and two of Beta.

CM gets Delhi call, cabinet formation before Aug 4

Basavaraj Bommai to meet Nadda today to finalise who will make it to his ministry, which will have representation from all regions, castes

ANUSHA RAVI @ Bengaluru

BARELY a day after he returned from his maiden visit to New Delhi as chief minister, Basavaraj Bommai was summoned by the Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) Central leadership on Sunday, ahead of the much-awaited cabinet formation.

Bommai, who rushed to Bengaluru's Kempegowda International Airport to take a flight to Delhi on Sunday evening, told the media that the Cabinet formation will take place before Wednesday. Bommai held consultations with senior BJP leaders, including party national president JP Nadda, during his two-day visit to Delhi after assuming office as chief minister, last week. Bommai, who returned to Karnataka on Saturday night, was asked to rush to Delhi on Sunday.

"I will meet party president JP Nadda on Monday and finalise names for the cabinet. The expansion will take place in a day or two," Bommai told reporters at the airport.

A section of the party unit in Karnataka, especially those close to leaders in tough competition with Bommai, has expressed concern over the composition of and representation in the cabinet.

> I will meet party president JP Nadda on Monday and finalise names for the cabinet. The expansion will take place in a day or two
> Basavaraj Bommai, Chief Minister

The party's central leadership, meanwhile, is said to have decided to end all disgruntlement with a full-fledged cabinet having equitable representation from region, caste, community and even core party leaders and newcomers who jumped from the Janata Dal Secular-Congress coalition to the BJP in 2019.

While senior BJP leaders like former Industries Minister and former chief minister Jagadish Shettar have publicly stated that they wouldn't want to be part of the Cabinet, former ministers in Yediyurappa's cabinet like R Ashoka, Umesh Katti and Murugesh Nirani are looking forward to holding key posts in the Bommai cabinet.

Meanwhile, Hiriyur Member of Legislative Assembly K Poornima is expected to be made a minister in place of Nippani MLA Shashikala Jolle, after the latter landed in a controversy following allegations of bribery in egg procurement tenders for anganwadis.

Shake-up in CMO points to waning BSY influence

BANSY KALAPPA @ Bengaluru

WITH Basavaraj Bommai's induction as CM, a big shake-up in the CMO has begun. While Karnataka Power Corporation MD V Ponnuraj has been appointed the Chief Minister's secretary, a total of 19 serving officers have been relieved.

Ponnuraj was Shivamogga DC and is said to be very close to B S Yediyurappa, and could be considered an indication of Yediyurappa's continued influence over the CMO.

But what has not gone down well with the officials is that Bommai is shifting Yediyurappa's team of loyal officers. Among them are M Lakshminarayana, adviser to the Chief Minister, Dr A Lokesh, Officer on Special Duty and joint director, Audit and Accounts department. He will go back to his parent department, while H S Satish, special officer in the CMO, will be sent back as assistant director, Horticulture department.

There was speculation that Rakesh Singh may be appointed Additional Chief Secretary to Bommai, while some sources claimed that Kapil Mohan, who was given charge of Bommai's pet project for transfer of Mahadayi water to Hubballi-Dharwad while he was WRD minister, and is considered to be close to Bommai, may also be in the race for the post.

There is no word on the position of Ramana Reddy, currently ACS to CM, appointed by Yediyurappa. Political watchers are keenly watching these developments since the postings will indicate if Yediyurappa's shadow will continue to influence the new CMO.

T M Suresh, who served as Special Officer, will return to his post of assistant professor of History in First Grade College, Shivamogga; Hadagali Arun Kumar, Officer Special Duty will go back as deputy secretary, RDPR; Arun Furtado, who served as deputy secretary and public information officer, will be sent back as joint director, social welfare department, K S Kiran Kumar, OSD, executive engineer, development, KIADB K Rajappa, political and private secretary will return as joint director, Cooperative department.

Mahesh RK, who was with the CM's Relief Fund, will go back as assistant controller, Karnataka State Audit and Accounts department. While S Nagarajaiah, CM's technical adviser is a retired superintending engineer, S Ramesh, who served as CM's technical adviser was a retired executive engineer. While some officers close to Yediyurappa have continued, political observers are keeping a close watch on developments in the secretariat.

Yatnal shouldn't issue threats on cabinet: KSE

ENS@Vijayapura

BJP MLA Basanagouda Patil Yatnal should not issue threats and say that he would give a befitting reply if a legislator from Vijayapura district is not picked as a minister during Cabinet formation by Chief Minister Basavaraj Bommai, said party senior leader and former minister KS Eshwarappa on Sunday.

"Yatnal should not make such statements before the media. Central leaders were in the State for three days and allowed all legislators to air their views. Why didn't he tell them about his complaints? I have spoken to him many times asking him to abide by the decision of the party. I will try to speak to him again," he said.

"We will go to the next Assembly polls based on the good governance of Bommai. We will work towards getting a clear majority, as despite being the ruling party, the BJP has never managed to cross the mid-way mark in the Assembly. We want to form a government without the help of any parties or leaders," the former deputy chief minister said.

Zameer consolidates support in Tumakuru, may contest in 2023

DEVARAJ B HIREHALLI @ Tumakuru

CHAMARAJPET MLA Zameer Ahmed Khan's frequent visits to Tumakuru, and his own fan following here, have fuelled rumours that he may choose Tumakuru City assembly seat, if given an opportunity, and sacrifice Chamarajpet for Opposition leader Siddaramaiah.

On Sunday, Youth Congress workers led by state secretary Ilahi Sikhander, celebrated Zameer's birthday and distributed grocery kits to needy people in the city. "Zameer has been helping to organise the Youth Congress with all support," remarked a district Youth Congress leader.

When the Covid-19 pandemic was at its peak in May-June 2021, Zameer had himself visited the Muslim-dominated areas in Tumakuru city, and donated oxygen cylinders, graining brownie points and popularity. The reading is that Zameer could prove to be a unifying factor for Muslims in Tumakuru, if the Congress pitches him in the next assembly polls. If he gives up his stronghold of Chamarajpet for Siddaramaiah, the latter is likely to help Zameer get a ticket from Tumakuru, a source said.

Minority leaders here are a divided house, and their differences pushed Congress to third place in the 2018 assembly polls, with former MLA Dr Rafeek Ahmed failing to garner complete support of minorities. Congress minority leaders Atheik Ahmed and Iqbal Ahmed are reportedly waging a cold war against Rafeek, while veteran Nayaz Ahmed Babu openly supported the BJP candidate in the 2018 polls, dividing the vote bank down the middle.

"Zameer is a mass leader of the community and if he contests from Tumakuru, he has a fair chance of winning. Otherwise, the JDS, that came in runner-up, may again take advantage of the internal bickering among minority leaders," saidSagheer Ahmed, an analyst.

Former MLA Rafeek Ahmed, though, denied that Zameer could take a chance from Tumakuru, as Chamarajpet is a safe bet, and Siddaramaiah has not yet decided to switch from Badami.

Bommai seeks blessings from Deve Gowda, and some more

BANSY KALAPPA @Bengaluru

CHIEF Minister Basavaraj Bommai on Sunday paid a surprise visit to JDS supremo HD Deve Gowda, which was sought to be passed off as a courtesy call.

Bommai, who started off in the Janata Dal, was seeking blessings from JDS National President H D Deve Gowda, his late father SR Bommai's colleague.

Yet, there seems to be more to the visit: reliable sources suggest that BJP and JDS are warming up to each other in a significant way. It may be recalled that while preparations were on for leadership change in the last week of July, one group in the BJP was in touch with the JDS, and a senior JDS leader had camped in New Delhi for four days. This new-found friendship was to be utilised to counter any instability during the change of leadership in the BJP, the JDS was fully prepared and ready to move in.

One source said the JDS could be prepared to join the BJP before the elections, to shore up numbers which could be lost due to the incumbency factor. The BJP's understanding is that if they don't do well in the upcoming ZP/TP polls and 2023 elections, the party might still manage to hold on to power if it has an electoral understanding with the JDS, which is strong in the south, where the BJP is weak. The JDS is weak in north Karnataka, where BJP is strong, and this symbiotic relationship could help them.

One senior JDS leader told The New Indian Express, "Why should we offer them cover and back-up, we are ready to join the government." Insiders said JDS might come in handy if all the 17 defectors who moved out of the Congress-JDS government, are not accommodated. There is a significant number of ministers, and if they are not all accommodated, there could be instability if they quit the BJP.

The BJP is preparing to formally induct Kollegal MLA N Mahesh on August 5. Mahesh was expelled from the BSP in July 2019 when he defied the party whip and did not support the coalition government, which collapsed with 99 votes, as against 105 votes for the BJP.

Political analyst B S Murthy said, "Since Basavaraj Bommai personally enjoys an excellent relationship with Deve Gowda, the meeting has bigger meaning as Bommai is keen to build some insurance in case BS Yediyurappa plays foul. JDS concern about its dwindling support base in certain parts, even in South Karnataka which it might be halted if they share power, could try to control the rise of DK Shivakumar and CP Yogeeshwara."

Janata Parivar edging out Sangh Parivar?

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Bengaluru

THE 'insider vs outsider' spat that first started making the rounds in 2008, and later in 2019, is again creating a buzz in BJP circles. With Basavaraj Bommai's elevation as Chief Minister, cadres and leaders rooted in the RSS and ideology of the party, are said to be miffed over loyalists being overlooked, while 'outsiders' are being prioritised for top posts.

The discussion has become quite evident and public in BJP's inner circles. Mass messaging apps are becoming a medium of broadcasting the disgruntlement expressed by party loyalists.

"Newly sworn-in CM Basavaraj Bommai came from the Janata Parivar. Even Govind Karjol and Laxman Savadi, who were Deputy Chief Ministers in the BS Yediyurappa government, hail from the Janata Parivar," a line from a WhatsApp message that is going viral in BJP circles reads, insisting that leaders from the Janata Parivar are slowly pushing out leaders from the Sangh Parivar in the party.

The message also says that while loyalists are being sidelined, those who joined the BJP from other parties are not just being given a red-carpet welcome, but also plum posts and responsibilities. The dissenting message adds that BJP's core principles lie in Hindutva, Hindu votes, protection of the Hindu religion, realisation of Hindu nation, and nationalism and prioritising people who came from other parties is denting its principles.

Party seniors are well aware of the disgruntlement, and are hoping that the cabinet formation will lay all doubts to rest. "The cadre is more emotional. They do not understand political choices. They just want someone who is committed to the party and its ideology, to be at the helm of affairs. They want someone they can call their own. When that doesn't happen, they are naturally miffed. But we will manage it," said a senior BJP functionary.

He insisted that Bommai's handling of the Cabinet formation and appointments to boards and corporations hold the key to extinguish any dissent that may flare-up in future.

The tone and emotion of the cadres and core BJP leaders is akin to the Congress when Siddaramaiah -- who quit the Janata Dal to join Congress – was chosen Chief Minister in 2013.

Simha wants K'taka to submit DPR on Mekedatu soon

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Mysuru

THE State Government should work on submitting a detailed project report (DPR) on the Mekedatu project to the Centre, said BJP MP Pratap Simha on Sunday, even as the Tamil Nadu unit of BJP headed by former IPS officer K Annamalai is going ahead with its plans to hold a protest.

Simha said that the protest call given by Annamalai is only to address the prevailing political situation in Tamil Nadu. "We have been asked by the Centre to submit the DPR. I request all politicians to work towards getting the project cleared, instead of issuing contradictory statements," he added. Taking a jibe at Congress leader Siddaramaiah's statement that CM Basavaraj Bommai will not be able to realise the Mekedatu project, Simha said, "Basavaraj Bommai was working with his father SR Bommai, who was a CM too. He has learnt the ropes of administration since then."

FEELING HELPLESS

Flood-hit villagers furious as CM cuts short visit, flies to Delhi

As many as 200 houses have been completely destroyed in Mallapura panchayat

SUBHASH CHANDRA NS @Karwar

SOON after assuming charge as chief minister, Basavaraj Bommai visited the flood-ravaged Uttara Kannada district and announced a relief package of Rs 200 crore for reconstruction and rehabilitation works.

But residents of Mallapura Gram Panchayat in Karwar taluk are unhappy that Bommai did not visit their panchayat -- which covers eight villages -- to take stock of the flood situation, which has completely destroyed 200 houses and displaced 2,000 people. They blame local officials for not bringing their plight to Basavaraj Bommai's notice.

The chief minister on Thursday visited flood-affected Ankola and Yellapur taluks, and also Arabail Ghat, which saw 14 landslides in the recent rain. Though he was scheduled to visit Karwar, he cut short his tour as he had to leave for Delhi.

Gram panchayat vice-president Uday Bandekar said, "No one in power visited us after the 2019 floods... On Thursday, the chief minister should have come to villages in our panchayat and witnessed the damage caused."

"We were hoping that the chief minister would hear our grievances. The recent rain and floods had already ravaged our villages when 2.7 lakh cusecs of water from the nearby Kadra dam was released, which worsened our condition. Also, 200 houses have been completely damaged. The dam crest gates had to be opened as the inflow was high," Gram Panchayat president Tanuja Rangaswamy told TNIE.

The dam, constructed across Kali river, was built to produce hydel power. But with the nearby Kaiga nuclear power station functional, the hydel power unit at Kadra dam is shut.

According to former Karwar MLA Satish Sail, KPCL authorities released water from the dam without any warning. "I tried to meet the chief minister at Ankola with a delegation from Mallapura. But, due to high police security, we could not even go near him."

The villagers now want the deputy commissioner to inspect Mallapura area and want the chief minister to visit their village. "We face floods every year. Let the government relocate the entire panchayat," Tanuja added. The panchayat has eight villages — Bolve, Irpagge, Mallapura, Virje, Kuchegar, Hurtuga, Harur, and Balse.

Contractor held for child labour

Seven children rescued from worksite near Settihalli Railway Station

S LALITHA @ Bengaluru

A Bengaluru-based railway contractor and his associates have been booked, and seven child labourers rescued near Settihalli Railway Station by the Labour department and organisations working for rights of children on Saturday. An FIR has been filed against them at the Government Railway Police station at Krantivira Sangolli Rayanna railway station.

The contractor, Govindaraj Nagamuni (47) of Sachin Construction based in Nelamangala, is the prime accused, while his associates Durgaiah (40) from Ramanapete village in Telangana and Venkatesh Gujjalu (26) from Gurugundla Village in Andhra Pradesh have been named in the FIR. The children from Telangana had accompanied their parents to work on the project between Ramanagara and Yeliyur.

Children deployed for work on the railway tracks by a contractor in Bengaluru

DG Sumathi, State Co-ordinator, Bachpan Bachao Andolan, who got a tipoff on child labour, said, "We found three girls and four boys working along with their parents. They were all below 18 years old. The youngest is 12 years and 6 months and the oldest 17 years and six months. It is not a case of trafficking as parents were also working with their children."

"The nature of their job was hazardous and risky. They were placing crushed stones on the railway tracks and levelling them," she said. The Aadhaar cards of children seemed fake as the addresses did not have pincodes and had other details missing, she added. The contractor has agreed to pay a penalty of Rs 1.4 lakh, at Rs 20,000 per child. The Labour Department will also pay Rs 15,000 for a child. "The money will be deposited as an FD in the child's name and will be handed over after they turn 18 years old," Sumathi said. The court may also impose fines on the contractor.

Vidyarayana Open Shelter for Children played a role in the rescue.

The police arrested the duo on Saturday, but are yet to nab the third suspect.

City police book 14 rowdies under NDPS, Arms Acts

ENS @ Bengaluru

A day after the South-East division police detained 18 rowdy-sheeters, as many as 14 of them were booked under the Arms Act and NDPS Act on Sunday, after the police recovered lethal weapons (swords, machetes and daggers) from their houses. A senior police officer said that some of them were caught under the influence of drugs during the raids, and were taken for medical tests.

According to the police, FIRs have been registered against seven rowdies under the NDPS and Arms Acts, and medical reports of around 33 rowdies are awaited. Seven others were booked on charges of possessing weapons to hatch plots of robbery and murder. Further action will be taken based on reports.

The police suspect that those rowdies who have been booked under the NDPS Act are linked to drug rackets, while others are involved in anti-social activities. Several habitual offenders managed to give cops a slip during the surprise checks, and efforts are on to track them.

It may be recalled that in the wee hours of Saturday, a team headed by DCP Srinath Mahadev Joshi raided the houses of 63 rowdies.

Lakshadweep admin goes ahead with big tourism push

Invites global tenders to build eco-tourism beach and water villas on 3 islands

EXPRESS XPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Kochi

IN a major development initiative ignoring the recent protests, the Lakshadweep administration on Sunday invited global tenders for launching high-end eco-tourism projects -- beach villas and water villas -- on Kadamat, Minicoy and Suheli islands. The estimated total project cost is ₹813 crore.

Bids have been invited from hospitality companies from around the world for establishing and running a total of 370 rooms – 230 in beach villas and 140 in water villas -- on the three islands in private-public partnership mode for 75 years, including three years for construction of the resorts. The bid due date is September 2.

The biggest project, as per the tender, will come up in Minicoy, where the administration has invited bids for beach villas with 110 rooms and water villas with 40 rooms at a total cost of ₹319 crore. At

The estimated cost of the eco-tourism project that will be built in Kadamat, Minicoy and Suheli islands, is at Rs 813 crore | EXPRESS

Suheli and Kadmat islands, the plan is to construct a total of 110 rooms each -- beach villas (60 rooms each) and water villas (50 rooms each) -- at ₹247 crore per island.

The administration said the project has to be run in design, build, finance, operate and transfer mode on a public-private partnership basis.

The invitation for global bids by the government comes disregarding warnings by experts that the "Maldives model" of tourism development would wreak havoc on Lakshadweep islands' fragile coral ecosystem.

However, the Lakshadweep administration, in a release said, a joint survey by representatives from National Centre for Sustainable Coastal Management (NCSCM), Ministry of Environment, Forests & Climate Change, and NITI Aayog, who had visited Lakshadweep during November 2018, was done for site assessment and confirmation.

"The total number of keys (rooms) for water villas to be developed conforms to the carrying capacity numbers assessed by NCSCM, which was further strengthened by the holistic development master plan," the release said.

Now, TN tightens curbs on travellers from Kerala

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@T'Puram/Chennai

CLOSE on the heels of Karnataka imposing strict restrictions on travellers from Kerala, Tamil Nadu also made it mandatory for those coming from the state to carry a negative RT-PCR test report or vaccination certificate of two doses from August 5.

The curbs imposed by the two neighbouring states in the wake of Covid surge in Kerala are likely to hit the travel plans of many ahead of the Onam festival. The guidelines are mandatory for people entering these states from Kerala through any mode of transport -- road, rail and air.

In the light of the new developments, the Kerala State Road Transport Corporation (KSRTC) has stopped all services to Mangaluru from Kerala for the next one week, but it would operate limited services to Bengaluru for passengers with RT-PCR negative certificate.

On Sunday, Tamil Nadu Health Minister Ma Subramanian said the state government has made RT-PCR negative certificate mandatory for people coming from Kerala from August 5. "However, those who have taken two doses of vaccine can enter Tamil Nadu without RT-PCR test report. They should have completed 14 days since taking the second dose of the vaccine," the minister said. Tamil Nadu will also set up a system to provide Covid test results for air passengers in 13 minutes at the airports.

Karnataka had on Saturday made RT-PCR negative result, obtained within 72 hours, mandatory for people from Kerala, irrespective of the vaccination status.

MARKETS CLOSED AS COVID CASES SEE RISE

Chennai : The marginal increase in Covid-19 cases for the past three days has hit the brakes on Chennai's return to normalcy from Covid's second wave. Officials said that most cases rose from busy markets and hospitals. Following this marginal rise, the corporation ordered the closure of at least ten major markets and shopping plazas, including those at T Nagar, Purasawalkam, Chindadripet and Royapuram for the next ten days. Six tractors enter Bandipur Tiger Reserve, activists see red

KARTHIK K K @Mysuru

AT a time when forest officials of the Bandipur Tiger Reserve are under fire for not acting against those who held a feast inside the tiger reserve last month, another incident of callousness has been reported. This time tractors were found moving inside the tiger reserve leaving the wildlife activists fuming.

A video of a tractor carrying several people inside the Bandipur Tiger Reserve patrolling road (safari track) alleged to have been occurred two days back has gone viral.

According to sources, the forest department itself had allowed these people to visit the Hallali Maramma temple under the Maddur range in the tiger reserve. As the forest minister has considered Bandipur Tiger Reserve a critical tiger habitat, allowing tractors inside the forest area with people is a gross violation to the guidelines, said a wildlife activist. Taking to Facebook, wildlife activist and member of Karnataka Wildlife Board Joseph Hoover said tractors have made a mess of the tracks which are regularly used by forest staff for patrolling.

He suggested that Chief Minister Basavaraj Bommai, who is also the chairman of the State Board of Wildlife, should direct officials to look into the happenings in Bandipur. Suggestions have poured in to make arrangements for devotees in the forest department vehicles similar to how it is done at Goplaswamy Hills, which would put an end to this practice which might lead to any untoward incidents.

A senior forest official from the BTR, on condition of anonymity, said they have taken the issue seriously and have also been brought it to the notice of higher-ups.

JUDGE'S HIT-AND-RUN MURDER IN J'KHAND IS AFFRONT TO JUDICIARY

With the CBI taking over the probe into the murder of an additional district judge in a hit-and-run case in Dhanbad, all arms of the law enforcement machinery appear primed to unravel the plot to eliminate him. Judge Uttam Anand was out on a morning jog along an empty street when a stolen autorickshaw swerved towards him, knocked him down from behind and sped away. The heavily bleeding judge was later spotted and taken to a hospital, but he succumbed to his injuries. Initial theories were of a road accident till viral CCTV footage of the chilling murder made the authorities sit up and take notice. While the Jharkhand High Court took suo motu cognisance, the Supreme Court initially fobbed off requests to take it up till the case became too big to ignore. Anand last month had dealt with bail applications of powerful gangsters, sexual harassment cases, alleged diversion of scholarship funds and sale of fake lottery tickets. Whoever plotted the attack apparently knew the judge's daily morning routine. The auto driver and its lone passenger have since been arrested.

The murder at dawn is a chilling blow to judicial independence and an indication of the worsening law-and-order situation in Jharkhand, since such incidents hadn't happened even during the height of Naxal activity in the region. Intimidation by powerful people using muscle power is a fact of life officers in the lower judiciary have to live with across the country, with little protection. Just the other day, an SC bench led by Justice D Y Chandrachud berated the Madhya Pradesh High Court for not standing by a trial court judge who feared for his life after denying bail to the husband of a BSP MLA in a case involving the murder of a Congress leader.

Independence of the subordinate judiciary is the bedrock of the country's legal system. As the Bench noted, trial court judges work in appalling conditions. Lack of infrastructure, inadequate protection and judges being made targets when they "stand up for what is right" make them vulnerable. With the SC now seized of the matter, one hopes it would address the systemic problems of the subordinate judiciary being pressured from within and without so as to build confidence to do their job without fear or favour.

INDIAN BADMINTON NEEDED IT MORE

Whenever an Indian wins an Olympic medal, the unbridled celebration reflects our emotion. It also silently reveals the hunger in all of us for those elusive medals. So when an athlete wins two in as many Olympics, it's natural to react in bewilderment and awe. P V Sindhu became just the second athlete in our country's history to accomplish that feat when she won bronze in Tokyo on Sunday. She is the first woman to do so. For her, it's a moment of purgation after an unremarkable 2020. It was dogged by losses on court and controversies off it. Sindhu's prodigious talent is just one part of the story. There is her head that has the ability to exorcise any demons that try to tear her down. Her nonchalant demeanour is as deceptive as her drop shots.

The previous year had been cruel to her. There were avoidable issues off the court and everything she did or did not do was dissected with disdain. She suddenly left camp and flew to London in the middle of a pandemic. She hardly won matches with ease. There were times when critics questioned her commitment; she left her coach P Gopichand's academy to train in Gachibowli Stadium under Park Tae-sang. Not ideal preparation. Yet she doggedly pursued her goal. She cooped herself up inside the stadium. She shut herself from all those distracting noises outside and ploughed on for that second Olympic medal.

Yes, Sindhu needed the medal real bad. More than her, the sport of badminton in India needed it. Its upward moving curve had suddenly stalled and started to dip ever so gently in the last couple of years. From the eight who qualified in 2016, only four managed to do so this Olympics. There was noise and too much of brouhaha off the court. A medal-less Olympics would have spelled disaster. If there was one person who had the ability to save the fortunes of the sport from plummeting, it was of course Sindhu. No wonder the nation considers her an all-time great.

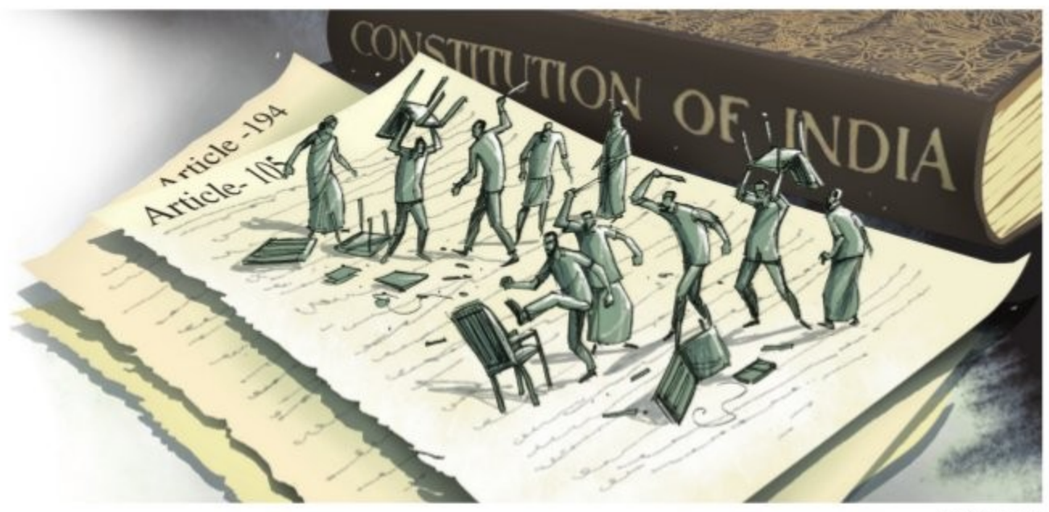
Lawyer, Supreme Court of India



SOUMYADIP SINHA

Bad litigations can often make good laws. The law laid down by the Supreme Court in the infamous Kerala Assembly ruckus case demonstrates this point. The judgment of July 28 by the Bench consisting of Justices D Y Chandrachud and M R Shah is immensely instructive. It sets a fine precedent.

What happened on 13 March 2015 on the floor of the Kerala Legislative Assembly is deplorable. A few among the legislators crossed all limits, broke the elementary rules of discipline and decency, and indulged in acts of sheer vandalism. Furniture and equipment in the hall were destroyed and the estimated loss due to destruction of property was about ₹2.2 lakh. The telecast of the incident conveyed an egregious facet of our democracy—the lawmakers themselves breaking the law.

Rather than the incident in 2015, it is the government's persistent attempt to subvert the due process that shocks the citizens and presumably, the court. In the process, the government wanted to create two legal superstitions and tried to support them. Firstly, it tried to invoke Section 321 of the Criminal Procedure Code (Cr.PC) to withdraw the case against the accused. Secondly, it sought to do so by relying on Article 194 of the Constitution that inter-alia talks about the immunity and privileges of the legislators. Both these ideas were clearly fallacious. Still, the government moved the trial court, the High Court and the Supreme Court, inviting judicial admonitions, one after the other.

Withdrawal of criminal prosecution at the behest of the state may be sometimes necessary and justifiable. The prosecution against George Fernandes was sought to be given up on political grounds, which was endorsed by the top court in the Rajendra Kumar Jain case (1980). Fernandes was accused of opposing the Emergency and indulging in political acts to overawe the government. The court said there was no improper motive in withdrawing the case. But such instances where prosecutions are given up due to legitimate political reasons are extremely rare. Very often, leaders inside and outside the House justify the atrocity when it suits them and oppose it if done by the rival camp.

The law on the point is clear. A criminal offence should reach its logical conclusion and it cannot be aborted solely on the grounds that the accused is a political bigwig. The erstwhile corresponding provision in the Cr.PC, ie, Section 494, was interpreted by the top court in Ram Naresh Pandey (1957) to say that withdrawal of prosecution can be done for legitimate purpose, and it should not interfere with the normal course of justice. In Sankaranarayanan Nair's case (1971), the court said that it can be invoked "in furtherance of justice". The Chandrachud-led Bench, after referring to these precedents and the George Fernandes case, has clarified the legal principle. The judgment says that a prosecution could be withdrawn only on legally justifiable grounds. The prosecutor who files the application cannot act merely as per the dictates of the government. She should "formulate an independent opinion" and convince herself and also the court that the withdrawal "is necessary for good and relevant reasons". The court considering such a plea is exercising a "judicial function" that is also "supervisory in nature". The Supreme Court indicated that "good faith, in the interest of public policy and justice" must be the hallmark of an application for withdrawal of prosecution, which the petition in the instant case ostensibly lacked.

> The very idea of privilege is colonial and there is mounting pressure across the Commonwealth countries to abolish the 'special statuses' for lawmakers

The court also exposed and explained the jurisprudence of legislative immunity. Article 105 of the Constitution speaks about the parliamentary privileges and Article 194 extends analogous protection to a member of the Legislature of every state. The very idea of privilege is colonial and there is mounting pressure across the Commonwealth countries to abolish the 'special statuses' for lawmakers. Legislative privileges in India are not codified. Understanding the privileges and the immunity means understanding their limits. Democracy rests on the limitations to power.

A member of Parliament or Assembly is many in one. She represents a multitude of people and undertakes multiple tasks. Edmund Burke has put it in perspective: "You choose a member , indeed; but when you have chosen him, he is not a member of Bristol, but he is a member of Parliament." The legislators have a critical, instructive and responsible job. They need to act as true leaders. If they fail, the public at large are impacted. John Adams famously said, "When the legislature is corrupted, people are undone."

Privilege and immunity, which are essentially Victorian cosmetics, need a constitutional corrigendum. In the words of Justice Chandrachud, "The purpose of bestowing privileges and immunities to elected members of the legislature is to enable them to perform their functions without hindrance, fear or favour" and "they are not a mark of status which makes legislators stand on an unequal pedestal". The Kerala government has shown the audacity to claim immunity under the garb of Article 194 for what a few legislators did. It defended the indefensible.

Constitutional morality must be the cornerstone of good governance and the Left government's political obstinacy on the issue is deeply disturbing. Even after the setback, the chief minister and the leaders with him have been quite unapologetic about the whole episode. One can only remind them what Mahatma Gandhi said in a different context: "If fighting for the legislatures meant a sacrifice of truth and non-violence, democracy would not be worth a moment's purchase."

OUR ANCIENT HERITAGE BEYOND DHOLAVIRA

ANURADHA GOYAL
Author and founder of blogging website IndiTales

Harappa and Mohenjo-daro have been on my wish list since I read about them in my school textbooks. Despite being right next door, they are not the easiest places to visit for an Indian. I still hope that I will be able to visit them one day. The news of Dholavira getting the much-deserved UNESCO World Heritage Site tag made me think of the Sindhu Sarasvati valley civilisation heritage we have in India. Most of it can be found in museums across the country on display as proud remnants of a highly developed civilisation of which we are the descendants.

Of the heritage sites of the Indus Valley civilisation, Lothal in the Gulf of Khambhat is a unique one both because it is accessible to the general public and is probably the oldest known dockyard in the world. When you walk around the ruins of the city that looks more like the foundations of an unfinished building, you have to stretch your imagination to think of it as a bustling international trade centre that connected India to the world over the sea route thousands of years ago. What I remember most from this site is the kiln and the bead-making factory. The microbeads in sparkling white colour can still be seen at the site museum along with other excavated material. The beads are so minute that you need to use a magnifying glass to appreciate their shape and the holes within. One wonders about the technology used to craft such miniature beads or even where they were used besides being part of jewellery. Another thing that I remember is the baked bricks in an isosceles trapezoid shape, designed such that they come together perfectly in a circle to line a circular well.

A visit to the small museum in Ropar near Chandigarh told me that the planned city of Chandigarh was actually built on top of the ancient planned city of Indus Valley civilisation. The museum located right next to the excavated mound has artifacts that we now identify with this civilisation like burial pottery, beads, toys and terracotta figurines. Sanghol is another Indus Valley site located not too far from Chandigarh, on the way to Ludhiana. The village is more popularly known as Uccha Pind. Based on excavations, it is dated back to the late Harappan period that was potentially inhabited right upto the Kushan era. You can see sculptures excavated from here at the site museum as well as at Chandigarh Museum.

The Dancing Girl of Mohenjo-daro invariably takes us back to school history books, but not many know that you can see her at the National Museum in Delhi. One may be a bit disappointed to find her much smaller than we imagined, at just about four inches in height. But being face to face with her is like getting transported to the era when she must have been cast using the lost wax method, a technique that continues to be practiced in remote corners of India. The gallery also has the seals, painted pottery and large funeral mounds on display. I also remember the skeleton of a buried woman from Rakhigarhi—one of the oldest and largest of the Indus Valley sites in Hisar district of Haryana. Rakhigarhi and Sinauli in Western Uttar Pradesh as of now are not so accessible to the general public but I hope to visit them or their artifacts as and when possible.

> Dholavira recently received the much-deserved UNESCO World Heritage Site tag. ... Of the heritage sites of the Indus Valley civilisation, Lothal in the Gulf of Khambhat is a unique one both because it is accessible to the general public and is probably the oldest known dockyard in the world

On the west coast, on the island of Beyt Dwarka, marine archaeological excavations have revealed late Harappan period material including a typical Indus Valley seal, pottery, an inscribed jar, a copper object, a coppersmith's stone mould used for casting spearheads, etc. Remember, the island, surrounded by the sea, must have undergone massive corrosion, yet glimpses of the past have managed to survive more or less in situ.

Kalibangan in Hanumangarh district of Rajasthan is supposedly located at the confluence of the Sarasvati and Drishadvati rivers that mark the boundary of Kurukshetra in Mahabharata. Like typical Indus Valley sites, it has an upper city and a lower city, with the latter being the earlier site. Some even call it pre-Harappan. Cities are designed in a grid pattern aligned to cardinal directions. There are usual markers of the civilisation like the use of clay and burnt bricks, seals, pottery, terracotta figures and burial pits. There are fire altars for rituals. However, this site stands out for the evidence of ploughed fields, the earliest known one.

There are some things that we know about the Sindhu Sarasvati civilisation, but there is a lot we do not know and are yet to uncover, decipher and understand. I hope that we not only learn the sophisticated town planning from our ancestors but also understand what led to their steep and probably sudden downfall.

Sindhu a role model

Kudos to P V Sindhu for winning a bronze medal in the Olympics. The badminton star has become the first Indian woman athlete to win two Olympic medals. She is a great role model and the entire country is proud of her achievements.

Sindhu displayed her class in an excellent victory against Chinese shuttler He Bingjiao. I hope discus thrower Kamalpreet Kaur and the hockey teams too bag medals in the days to come.

Dealing with rising Covid

This is with reference to Centre for tight curbs in 46 districts (Aug 1). This shows that states have lowered their guard prematurely. Kerala, which eased curbs during Bakrid, is undoubtedly the worst offender. It is necessary that the 46 districts with high positivity rate comply with the Centre's advisory immediately by enforcing Covid protocol strictly. All states should realise that with vaccines in short supply, strict adherence to the norms is the only way forward to contain the pandemic.

Livelihoods destroyed

This is with reference to Hit hard by lockdown money crunch, 17 end lives in Kerala in last six weeks (Aug 1). Most of the departed were willing to work but they found it difficult to make ends meet. Covid and its various variants are playing havoc with those who run shops, street vendors and daily-wage workers. Many are finding it difficult to repay loans since many activities are halted due to the pandemic. The government should act as fast as possible before the situation worsens.

Baleswar R, Mavelikara

Confusion in Kerala

Kerala has reported over 20,000 new Covid infections for some days now. No other state is even close to the 10,000 mark. The Covid confusion in Kerala has led to many questions, with no definite answer. Low zero prevalence, testing targeted to symptomatic people and unscientific easing of the lockdown are seen as the main reasons for the surge.

K A Solaman, Alappuzha

State has performed well

Despite Kerala's high daily counts, it has displayed stellar performance. How has it managed low hospitalisations and fatality amidst this surge? It is clear that the state is treating its positive cases early and effectively.

M Balakrishnan, Bengaluru

Failure after early success

For people who have followed the Covid trajectory in Kerala, the latest findings of the sero survey may not be all that surprising (MP highest at seroprevalence, Kerala at bottom, July 29). The early success of the state was not followed up by an efficiently calibrated reopening of the economic spheres. Nor was there any effective mass vaccination plan. One of the reasons for this may be the lack of major industrial organisations in the state that might have spearheaded a united call for a calibrated opening up of the economy.

Parameswaran K, Coimbatore

File cases against Kapoor

That the National Gallery of Australia is returning many stolen artworks sourced from Subash Kapoor is great news. Articles in this newspaper much earlier had pointed this out (How an Australian museum ignores obvious red flags, 10 Dec 2020, Inflated Oz museum purchase prices fuel demand for our idols, 9 Jan 2021, etc.). The museum, which was dilly-dallying, has finally returned the sculptures that it had purchased spending millions in public money due to pressure, showing that the evidence was overwhelming as otherwise it would have tried to still hold on to them. Despite this, as the author of the above articles had pointed out, even cases have not been filed against Kapoor in India in many of these instances by states other than Tamil Nadu.

Govt hopes for split in Opposition ranks to break Parliament impasse

Discussion on Covid and farmers on the cards, Pegasus controversy unlikely to be taken up

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ New Delhi

WITH the monsoon session of Parliament entering the last leg, the government is hoping for a division in the Opposition ranks by taking up discussions on Covid-19 and farmer agitations in Lok Sabha, while packing the legislative businesses in both the Houses.

The Opposition stays on an aggressive course against the government on the Pegasus snooping issue, with no indication till late Sunday evening of a breakthrough in the ongoing standoff in the Parliament.

"There's no positive development despite a number of efforts made by the NDA leaders in both the Houses. We will see what happens on Monday," said a floor manager of the NDA in the Parliament.

However, the agenda for the Lok Sabha includes a short discussion on the situations emerging out of the Covid-19 pandemic, which is being moved by RSP leader NK Premchandran and Shiv Sena's Vinayak Bhaurao Raut under Rule 193, which doesn't entail voting, but only a response from the concerned minister.

The bulletin for the lower House has also listed a business to discuss a statutory resolution seeking disapproval of the "Commission for Air Quality Management in National Capital Region and Adjoining Areas Ordinance, 2021, and passing of a bill to replace it, which is likely to be in line with the agreement arrived at during the earlier stages of negotiations between the government and the farmers' unions before talks broke down.

The government has packed legislative business for the ongoing session, and the NDA floor managers appear determined to push through the bills even if Opposition MPs camp in the well of the House.

"Congress and Trinamool Congress leaders are particularly not showing any accommodative stance to arrive at a formula to break the deadlock in the Parliament. There exists no chance of the government accepting their conditions for taking up discussions on the Pegasus issue, that the Prime Minister or the home minister be present in the House and either of them reply afterwards. Other Opposition parties have, however, expressed keenness for a compromise. Discussion on Covid-19 will be watched," said a Union minister, who didn't wish to be identified.

The Rajya Sabha had taken up discussions on Covid-19 before lapsing into pandemonium over the Pegasus issue.

Shah hails Yogi government, predicts huge win next year

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Lucknow

HAVING played a key role in rebuilding BJP's organisation in Uttar Pradesh and plotting the party's electoral success in the state, Union Home Minister Amit Shah on Sunday exuded confidence that the Yogi Adityanath government will return to power with a bigger mandate in the 2022 Assembly polls.

Shah spent the day in Lucknow, Mirzapur and Varanasi, laying the foundation stone of UP State Institute of Forensic Sciences in the state capital, before doing the same at Vindhyachal Dham Corridor and unveiling a ropeway connecting three shrines of goddess Durga in Mirzapur.

"I toured every nook and corner of UP between 2013 and 2019 and have been fortunate to join party workers in pasting party posters and organising rallies. But owing to travel restrictions due to the pandemic, I've come to UP after a long time. This is like home to me.

> Congress and regional parties have thrived on OBC votes, but what stopped them from taking initiatives which are being undertaken by the Modi government now
> Amit Shah, Home Minister

Credit for the massive mandate for BJP in the 2014 and 2019 Lok Sabha polls goes to UP only. We were small workers, but the people of UP made us big. Our workers faced all, including lathis and bullets during Kar Sewa in Ayodhya, but the struggle of 550 years is finally over and the foundation of Ram Temple in Ayodhya was laid by our PM last year," said Shah.

Praising Adityanath, Shah said his government has kept the promises made in the poll manifesto in a structured manner, with adequate administrative mechanism and a budget of ₹5,50,270 crores. "I'm sure that the nation led by PM Modi and UP led by Yogi Adityanath will achieve the targets of $5 trillion and $1 trillion economy, respectively. From vaccination, testing to dedicated hospital beds, UP has been a leader in the country in combating the Covid-19 pandemic."

Shah added that UP is a leader in implementing 44 key schemes of the Modi government and the most favoured investment destination nationally. He lauded the UP government for religious projects in Hindu hotspots, including Varanasi, Ayodhya and Chitrakoot.

Attacking the BSP and SP regimes of the past, Shah dared Akhilesh Yadav and Mayawati to come out with their list of developments during the last 15 years. He mocked the opposition parties for staying out of sight during the pandemic and floods and only becoming active at times of elections.

He also highlighted the government's announcement of 27% OBC and 10% EWS reservation in undergraduate and postgraduate medical courses.

DATA REVEALS

More curative petitions in SC than reviews

KANU SARDA @ New Delhi

THE Supreme Court entertains curative petitions more often, compared to review petitions, according to figures from Parliament. Data reveals that from 2010, 92 civil review petitions were allowed, compared to only three curative petitions. The court also allowed 48 criminal curative petitions in comparison to zero criminal review petitions.

The main difference between a review petition and curative petition is that the first is inherently provided in the Constitution of India, whereas the emergence of the latter is in relation with the interpretation of the review petition by the Supreme Court, enshrined in Article 137. A curative petition can be referred to as the next step of the review petition. It allows the aggrieved party to contest the judgement after dismissal of the review petition.

According to experts, a curative petition can be seen as a tool against judicial bias. It also prevents misconceptions, that can arise in the process of pronouncing verdicts.

In the Delhi gang rape case of 2012, there was gross misuse of curative petitions. Certain checks and balances are to be fixed, according to the experts. Supreme Court lawyer KV Dhananjay said, "Curative petitions arise only after the Supreme Court dismisses a review petition. In essence, a curative petition says that the original judgment was erroneous and a review petition to correct the judgment was wrongly dismissed. Statistically, therefore, review petitions are bound to witness a very low rate of acceptance."

Blow for Congress, former Manipur party chief switches over to BJP

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ New Delhi

THE BJP on Sunday inducted former Manipur Congress chief Govindas Konthoujam and signalled its willingness to accept formidable leaders from Opposition parties to shore up its chances in next year's Assembly polls. BJP had been riding on the strength of former Congress legislators since 2017 to cement the party's position in the Northeastern state.

Manipur Chief Minister N Biren Singh flew to the national capital to make a case for the pro-Northeast credentials of the Prime Minister Narendra Modi-led NDA government. Konthoujam is a poll veteran in Manipur and his exit from Congress is likely to weaken the prospect of the Opposition party to wrest power from BJP.

Speaking to reporters at the party headquarters in the national capital, Singh said Konthoujam had wanted to join BJP along with him long back, but some sort of communication gap held him back. "Both of us want development of Manipur. With PM Modi at the Centre and the government's positive approach towards Northeastern states, Manipur is free from the economic blockades seen regularly in the past and also the insurgency which accounted for many lives," said Singh.

BJP had outsmarted Congress after the 2017 Manipur Assembly polls by forming the government despite having won fewer seats. Subsequently, it succeeded in poaching several Congress MLAs, to cement the party's hold in Manipur.

Health minister takes a dig at Rahul for comment on shortage of vaccines

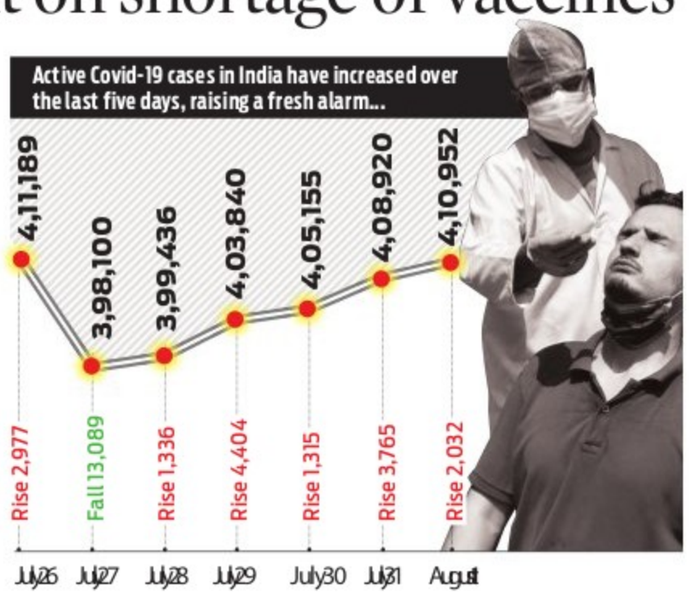
EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ New Delhi

UNION Minister for Health and Family Welfare, Mansukh Mandaviya on Sunday took a dig at former Congress president Rahul Gandhi, who highlighted the shortage of Covid-19 vaccines in the country.

"(The month of) July has gone, but not the shortage," quipped Gandhi in a one-line tweet on Sunday, tagging media reports from various parts of the country, which reported shortage of Covid-19 vaccines.

The Congress leader apparently trained his guns at the Union government for its earlier claims that there would be enhanced availability of Covid-19 vaccines from July till the end of the year at least.

The health minister responded to Gandhi, claiming that India administered as many as 13 crore doses of the vaccines in the month of July. "I've heard that those who received the 13 crore doses of the Covid-19 vaccines also included you," the minister responded.



The newly-appointed health and family welfare minister accused the Congress leader of indulging in "petty politics in the name of vaccines". Mandaviya lamented that Gandhi had not yet uttered a word of appreciations for the scientists of the country, and also not made any appeal to the people in general to take the vaccine against the pandemic.

Triple talaq law disastrous, says Muslim Law Board

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ New Delhi

TRIPLE talaq law is disastrous for Muslim women and increases difficulties for them, the All India Muslim Personal Law Board said on Sunday, commenting on the Centre's decision to celebrate August 1 as Muslim Women Day.

"In the pretext of Triple talaq law, today Central government has announced to celebrate Muslim Women Day. On this Board's Working General Secretary @hmksrahmani expressed his views stating that Triple talaq law is disastrous for Muslim women. It has increased difficulties for Muslim women," tweeted All India Muslim Personal Law Board.

Stepping in from the government's side was Union Minorities minister Mukhtar Abbas Naqvi, who defended the abolition of triple talaq claiming that the law to criminalise triple talaq has reduced such instances by 80 per cent. The law came into effect on August 1, 2019 and banned instant divorce, known as triple talaq.

In a function on triple talaq Naqvi attended with colleagues Smriti Irani and Bhupender Yadav, he said, "Cases of triple talaq have dropped by 80% since the Muslim Women (Protection Of Rights On Marriage) Act was enacted. In Uttar Pradesh, there were over 63,000 cases. After enactment of the law, cases dropped to 221. Bihar registered 49 cases after enactment of the Muslim Women (Protection Of Rights On Marriage) Act."

AIMIM chief Asaduddin Owaisi said, "This law will lead to more exploitation of Muslim women and add to their problems. Only cases will be registered and no justice will be delivered. Muslims have not accepted it."

Irani, Union Minister of Women and Child Development, said Muslim Women Day is to salute the spirit and struggle of Muslim women.

INDIA-NORWAY TIES

'Pandemic taught us that partnerships are key to tackle global challenges'

PUSHKAR BANAKAR @ New Delhi

INDIA and Norway have important roles to play in global peace and security, says Norwegian ambassador to India, Hans Jacob Frydenlund. In an interview, he talks about areas the countries can work on in order to make a difference.

Excerpts...

How have Norway-India relations been affected by the pandemic? Are there lessons it has taught?

Despite the pandemic, bilateral commitments continue to strengthen. We had frequent political contact virtually. Joint projects have continued as far as possible. Particularly in our Ocean Dialogue, we made substantial progress. As elected members of the UN Security Council, we have seen new avenues for collaboration open up in the area of peace and security. Although the lesson is not new, the pandemic has reminded us that partnerships are key to tackle global challenges. At the national level, the Norwegian government, business and citizen groups mobilized to support the Indian emergency efforts to tackle the COVID response during the second wave. Norway and India have had important roles in the global pandemic response, where India has held a key role as vaccine producer. Norway has contributed as co-chair of the Facilitation Council for the Access to Covid-19 Tools Accelerator and major donor to the COVID-19 Vaccines Global Access initiative.

Given that the situation is improving in India, are there plans to resume tourist visas for Indians?

Health authorities in Norway are evaluating the situation and considering further opening for travel. Students with permits are allowed to enter Norway through the month of August. Family members reuniting with residents in Norway (family immigration permits) and essential workers are allowed. Short-term travel is currently allowed in special situations.

Recently, Indian Oil Corporation built India's first green hydrogen plant with the help of a Norwegian company. Are there plans to build more plants?

Norway has many years of industrial experience across the entire hydrogen value chain and the Norwegian government has developed a Hydrogen Strategy with the aim of further developing and scaling new low emission technologies and solutions. We need to grasp the opportunities available to make a complete green transition and hydrogen has a significant potential for reducing local and global emissions. Hydrogen will be a key component for India's vision to have 450 GW capacity of renewable energy by 2030, and we are pleased to note that the Indian government has announced a National Hydrogen Mission to support this green shift. We are happy to see the statement of intent between Norway's Greenstat and Indian Oil for a new centre for excellence.

HANS JACOB FRYDENLUND
Ambassador of Norway to India

Earlier this month, Norway's foreign minister presented the country's new strategy for promotion of freedom of expression. India, of late, has been criticized over some aspects pertaining to curtailment of this freedom. Have you taken up the issue with Indian authorities?

Norway is strongly committed towards freedom of expression as a fundamental human right and as a cornerstone of a vibrant democracy. This, again, we see as essential for fostering inclusive and sustainable development. We hope other countries, including India, will be interested in our approach, as laid out in the strategy.

What are the areas, apart from the ones already existing, that Norway and India can collaborate in? Any new sector?

Norway and India are major ocean states. We place huge emphasis on our Ocean Dialogue with India. There is a lot of potential for advancing further the cooperation with India on sustainable use of the oceans, green shipping and ship recycling, integrated ocean management and research. In the UN Security Council, maritime security is an example of a shared concern and potential area of collaboration.

Babul Supriyo hints at joining another party

Edits viral Facebook post, removes portion that says he 'is not going anywhere'

PRANAB MONDAL @Kolkata

HOURS after posting a cryptic post on Facebook hinting at his exit from politics, former Union minister Babul Supriyo on Sunday edited the post for a second time, triggering speculation about what his next move might be.

Supriyo was axed from Prime Minister Narendra Modi's cabinet in the recent reshuffle.

Babul Supriyo

In the original post, he made it clear that he won't be joining any other party. However, Supriyo edited the post and removed the part that says he won't join any other party.

This has led to speculation that he may join another party. "I am not going to any other party— TMC, Congress, CPIM, nowhere. I am confirming that nobody has called me. I am not going anywhere," Supriyo posted.

He later edited the posted and removed, "I am not going anywhere". Responding to the development, a senior BJP leader said Supriyo does not want to shut all the doors.

"It is a clear indication that Supriyo doesn't want to shut all doors. Rather, he has opened it by editing the content which he had clearly kept shut in his original post. He actually fuelled the speculations of his next political move," he said.

In his Saturday's Facebook post, Supriyo had made it clear that there was a link between his removal from the cabinet and his decision to quit politics. He also pointed out there was difference of opinion between him and BJP's West Bengal leadership.

In a separate post on Sunday, Supriyo uploaded the reactions of the BJP's West Bengal president Dilip Ghosh and TMC spokesperson Kunal Ghosh to his Facebook post announcing his exit. "Some people used language according to their choice. I will answer their comments by delivering without being an MP. I will feel good if I can build up a hospital in the name of my mother in Asansol,'' he wrote.

Indian Army, PLA set up new hotline in Sikkim

MAYANK SINGH @New Delhi

AT a time of heightened tensions along the Line of Actual Control, the Armies of India and China on Sunday got a new telecommunication hotline link.

"A new hotline was established between Indian Army in Kongra La, North Sikkim and PLA at Khamba Dzong in Tibetan Autonomous Region to further the spirit of trust and cordial relations along the borders. The event coincided with the PLA Day on 01 Aug 2021," the Army said.

Ground commanders from both armies attended the inauguration, which saw a message of friendship and harmony being exchanged through the hotline.

The armed forces of the two countries have well established mechanisms for communication at ground commanders level. This is the sixth hotline. Till now there were two hotlines in eastern Ladakh, two in Sikkim and two in Arunachal Pradesh.

> A new hotline was established between Indian Army in Kongra La, North Sikkim and PLA at Khamba Dzong in Tibetan Autonomous Region
> Indian Army

Other hotlines have been established at meeting points along the LAC. There are five such point—one each in Daulet Beg Oldi, Chushul in eastern Ladakh, Nathu La in Sikkim, Bum La and Kibithu in Arunachal Pradesh.

According to Army sources, these hotlines go a long way in enhancing the communication between the armies.

As reported by this newspaper, with a standoff situation prevailing in eastern Ladakh since May 2020, there has been an increase in the amount communication between the PLA and the Indian Army in order to resolve the tensions. Maha floods damage prized collection at 156-yr-old library

SUDHIR SURYAWANSHI @ Mumbai

A 156-year-old library in Maharashtra's Chiplun town has seen many of its prized collections of books, historical documents, and artifacts covered in mud after the recent floods.

Chiplun, in the state's Ratnagiri district, received very heavy rainfall of about 200 mm in the 24 hours since Saturday evening. The town has been receiving heavy rainfall over the past few days.

"There was floodwater up to 12 ft in our building. Old and rare books and documents were floating around in the floodwater. Many artifacts from the medieval and Satvan dynasty period have been damaged. The floodwater remained in the building for four days," Prakash Deshpande, the working president of the Lokmanya Library and Museum said.

The library housed a rare collection of books, including some that were printed two centuries ago in 1805. It also housed coins from various periods; pots and several historical reference books. "We are not sure whether these things can be recovered. Most of them have been turned into pulp. Many books are covered in muck. So, it's going to be a tough job to clean up the books and other items and bring them back to their original conditions. It is very sad to see the oldest library getting damaged in flood," Deshpande added.

He said that this is not the first time the library has faced such a situation. There was heavy flooding in 2005. "The government should come out with a permanent plan to deal with these kinds of situations," Deshpande said.

Not the first time

"In 2005, there was a major flood. Back then, we lost 40,000 books. We were left with 15,000 books," said Prakash Deshpande

FAYAZ WANI @ Srinagar

TANVEER Ahmed Khan, son of a rickshaw puller and farmer, has secured second rank in the prestigious Indian Economic Services (IES) examination conducted by Union Public Service Commission (UPSC).

"My journey has been very tough," Tanveer said. "However, every success story has a struggle behind it. I too had to struggle as we were financially weak. It was my positive side that made me want to change our poor condition by studying and making it count."

Tanveer's father hails from remote Nageenpora Kund in South Kashmir's Kulgam's district. He also works as a seasonal rickshaw puller in Amritsar, Punjab, during the winter months to earn extra money to provide quality education for his son.

J&K STONE PELTERS CAN'T GET PASSPORT OR JOB

FAYAZ WANI @ Srinagar

THE J&K administration has now decided to deny stone pelters security clearance for passports or government schemes or jobs.

The instruction was issued through a circular issued by the SSP Criminal Investigation Department (CID), Special Branch-Kashmir (SBK).

It directed all its field units to ensure that during verification of papers, the individual's involvement in law and order, stone pelting and other crimes prejudicial to the security of the state be specifically looked into and corroborated from the local police station's records.

It also directed the field staff to look for digital evidence like CCTV footage, photographs, videos and audio clips, quadcopter images available in the records of police, security forces and security agencies for verification. "Any person found involved in any such case must be denied the security clearance," the circular instructed.

Sarma may be out of riot FIR

PRASANTA MAZUMDAR @Guwahati/New Delhi

IN the first sign of thaw in the ongoing turf war between Assam and Mizoram, the Mizoram government on Sunday indicated its intention to drop the name of Assam Chief Minister Himanta Biswa Sarma from a first information report (FIR) filed in the case. The FIR was registered in connection with the July 26 interstate border clash that left six Assam policemen dead and several others injured.

The decision to relook the FIR came after a conference call between Union Home Minister Amit Shah, Sarma and Mizoram Chief Minister Zoramthanga, stressing peaceful resolution through dialogue. Mizoram chief secretary Lalnunmawia Chuaungo later said Sarma's name would be removed from the FIR if there were no legal hitches.

Meanwhile, highly-placed sources in the Ministry of Home Affairs in Delhi dismissed reports of a CBI probe into the dispute.

SELF-SUFFICIENCY

Cauliflower farming helps Bihar village flourish

RAJESH KUMAR THAKUR @Patna

Chakawara, home to about 1,000 people in Bihar's Vaishali district, is an example of how a village can prosper through self-sufficiency.

About 20 years ago, Chakawara was a poor place. Its youth had no jobs. But fast forward to 2021, residents of the village have most modern comforts at their disposal and a handsome amount in the savings bank.

So, what's behind the Chakawara success story? The path to prosperity was laid after the villagers took up cauliflower seed cultivation.

The activity is generating a good enough income for youths to stop trying for government jobs. "In Chakawara, real Chak-De India prevails through self-reliance," said a youngster.

Sanjeev Kumar, the first recipient of the 'Plant Genome Saviour Farmer Award" from Bihar, said that more than 50 seed farms have been set up at this village for marketing cauliflower seeds.

Despite the Covid-19 lockdown, nearly a tonne of cauliflower seeds prepared by the village youths, including Kumar, was sent to many parts of the country since March 2020.

The new variety of cauliflower seed, developed by Sanjeev Kumar and named as 'Sanjeev Selection", is among the different varieties of seed developed by the village.

The Bihar Agriculture University at Sabour in Bhagalpur has developed a new variety of cauliflower seed called 'Sabour-Agrim" from the germ plasma of 'Sanjeev Selection" developed at this village.

Impressed by the economic success, figures such as CM Nitish Kumar and Planing Commission advisor BV Sadamate, have visited Chakawara.

J'khand objects to railway line through Tiger Reserve

The Jharkhand government has objected to the Indian Railways' proposal to lay an 18-km railway track through the core area of Palamu Tiger Reserve (PTR). The state government expressed concerns that the laying of the tracks will adversely affect wildlife in the sanctuary. On February 18, the railways had submitted a proposal to the state forest department, seeking wildlife clearance to lay a stretch of the third broad gauge line inside the PTR. The new line, which is 291-km long, will connect Patratu in Ramgarh district of Jharkhand with Sonnagar station in Aurangabad district of Bihar. Of the total length, an 18-km stretch will cross through the PTR's core area.

Fighting brings death, destruction to Afghan cities

Residents say Taliban fighting 'pitched battle from street to street', bodies piling up on streets; govt retaliates with airstrikes

KANDAHAR

FAMILIES abandoned their homes in droves, air strikes rained down on neighbourhoods and bodies filled the streets as the Taliban took their fight to Afghanistan's cities over the weekend, starting a new bloody chapter in the country's long war. Residents in the southern city of Lashkar Gah said the Taliban were fighting pitched battles from "street to street" with Afghan security forces and had surrounded the police headquarters and governor's office.

"The aircraft are bombing the city every minute. Every inch of the city has been bombed," said Badshah Khan, a resident of Lashkar Gah, the capital of Helmand province.

"You can see dead bodies on the streets. There are bodies of people in the main square," he added. The government remained in control of Lashkar Gah as of late Sunday thanks to the constant barrage of air strikes, but the future of the provincial capital seemed to hang from a thread as wave after wave of insurgents entered the city.

Violence has soared across Afghanistan since early May when the Taliban launched a sweeping offensive across large swaths of the country as the US military began its final withdrawal following nearly 20 years of operations.

The Taliban gobbled rural districts at a rapid rate, often without a fight. But the country's military has been digging in to defend a string of provincial capitals scattered across Afghanistan — including Lashkar Gah, Kandahar and Herat.

Following a brief lull in fighting during the Eid al-Adha holidays late last month, the Taliban appear to have turned their attention to capturing cities, launching withering onslaughts on several provincial capitals. In Lashkar Gah, resident Hazrat Omar Shirzad was livid after the Taliban forced him out of his house to take shelter from the air strikes. "The Islamic Emirate set the earth ablaze and the republic put the sky on fire. Nobody cares about the nation," said Shirzad.

Fighting was also reported in Herat near the border with Iran to the west for a third straight day, where militants swarmed the outskirts of the capital.

"With every passing day the security situation is getting worse," said Agha Reza, a businessman in Herat. "There is a 90 percent chance Herat city will collapse to the Taliban," he warned, saying that it lacked a steady supply of electricity.

Israel PM blames Iran for oil tanker attack, Tehran denies involvement

JERUSALEM

ISRAEL'S Prime Minister Naftali Bennett on Sunday blamed Iran for a deadly drone attack on an Israeli-operated oil tanker off the coast of Oman, saying Tehran has made a "serious mistake" and Tel Aviv will convey this message in its "own way". Bennett's veiled threat to retaliate comes hours after Iran denied its involvement in bombing off the coast of Oman on Thursday night.

Two crewmen, a British and a Romanian national, died in the attack on Mercer Street, a ship operated by Zodiac Maritime, a London-based company belonging to Israeli shipping tycoon, Eyal Ofer.

While no one has claimed responsibility for the attack, Israel has alleged that the attack was carried out by suicide drones that hit the ship.

"I just heard that Iran, in a cowardly manner, is trying to evade responsibility for the event. Then, I determine, with absolute certainty, Iran carried out the attack," Bennett said at the start of a weekly Cabinet meeting on Sunday. "The intelligence evidence for this (Iran's involvement) exists and we expect the international community will make it clear to the Iranian regime that they have made a serious mistake. In any case, we know how to send a message to Iran in our own way," he said.

Iran on Sunday denied the allegations. Iranian Foreign Ministry spokesman Saeed Khatibzadeh described the claims of Tehran's involvement as baseless. PTI

The key is to pick up an insurance cover and build emergency corpus

ANURADHA SHUKLA @New Delhi

WHEN Vivek Mathur (37) decided to quit his engineering job in May 2019, to take up freelance assignments and dedicate time for his hobby and family, his financial goals were well defined.

With an average monthly salary of ₹80,000, he left job with a fixed deposit of ₹10 lakh, another 12 lakh in mutual fund and EMI of ₹35,000 for his home and car loan. His wife had a decent salary to take care of other joint expenses. All was going well till Covid-19 hit.

Despite paying a hefty hospital bill, he could not save his father and to add to his woes, he was slapped with a bill of ₹18 lakh for treatment of his wife and both parents, with insurance companies paying only 60% of the amount. His assignments dried up and his wife who was in the hospitality industry lost her job, forcing the family to survive on fixed deposits. After struggling for six months, Vivek was back to full time job. "Covid-19 was like Tsunami. All my plans were shattered and while mediclaim helped to some extent, I was forced to settle for a lesser amount that too after six months. Now I have to make up for all I lost and also for the loss of income of my wife," he laments. Covid-19 has disrupted the financial goals and ruined early retirement dreams of many people like Vivek.

"No one had imagined a havoc like Covid-19. It has thrown up unprecedented financial challenges and has derailed the retirement plans of people. So many of my clients, even with decent financial instruments, have to withdraw from their PF (provident fund) and retirement fund after losing their jobs. Even those who have their job intact, are working with lower salary and financial insecurity. They are postponing new purchases to make up for the loss," Rakesh Malhotra, a Mumbai-based personal finance advisor said.

As the second wave hit, it wiped off about 22.7 million jobs in just two months, according to CMIE data and services sectors like tourism, hospitality, and airlines were among the worst hits. Going by the official numbers, the EPFO office closed as many as 71,01,929 accounts between April and December 2020 compared to 66,66,563 during the same period in 2019. Barring the IT and pharma sector, businesses resorted to salary cuts, firing and freezing fresh hiring. This coupled with prevailing high inflation has pushed many families out of the middle class.

Sensing the financial trouble, the Employee Provident Fund Organisation (EPFO) allowed its members to make another withdrawal from the EPF account as a non-refundable advance. This was done to help citizens amid the renewed Covid onslaught. As on June 1, EPFO has settled more than 76.31 lakh Covid-19 advance claims thereby disbursing a total of ₹18,698.15 crore.

Way forward

It is not that the Centre did not offer financial help, but most stimulus packages were in the form of soft credit, which experts feel is not enough to enhance personal consumption. While the state has been extending some help, it has limitations. In such uncertain times there is a need to readjust goals to be prepared for any aftershock. Experts say that the key is to pick the right instrument, ensuring enough insurance cover and having a good emergency corpus.

Maintain emergency funds

Do create an emergency fund, which could be six-month worth of expenses. Either keep that money in a savings account or in liquid funds, which can be accessed easily in time of emergency.

"Do you really need to change your car, or to go for an exotic holiday. Indulge by all means, if you have kept an emergency fund which is equivalent to six months of monthly financial commitment. Emergency fund is mostly missing from the financial goal. Post-Covid this is a crucial learning so that you have enough to protect your family from any financial shock," Malhotra added.

Get sufficiently insured

Your financial portfolio should have both sufficient life and health insurance coverage. While health insurance takes care of your hospital bills, life insurance makes sure those dependent on you do not face financial distress in your absence. For life insurance, a plain vanilla term plan with a large sum assured is what you need. People often end up buying ULIP or endowment plans in the name of insurance, but neither of these products offer sufficient life cover. As for health, ensure each family member is covered either through a family floater plan or through individual policies.

Diversify, Diversify, Diversify

"Whatever is the case one has to realign their financial goals to adjust to the post Covid world. But still the traditional wisdom rules. Diversity, diversify and diversify, with a mix of both short and long term financial instruments. Despite all negative reports, insurance is a must as it gives some cover at least," according to Sanjay Jain, a wealth manager. He further advised that if an investor is flexible enough, he/she can make up for the losses.

FIVE THINGS INFLUENCING NEW AGE INVESTING

ILLUSTRATION: SOUMYADIP SINHA

INSTITUTIONAL investors dominate financial markets. Trillions of dollars worth of equity, debt, commodities and now crypto-currencies are traded in markets worldwide. A hint of a potential hike in interest rates in America two years from today could cause turmoil in markets worldwide. The 'easy money flow due to near-zero interest rates is unlikely to last forever. While institutions brace themselves for rising interest rates, retail participation in the financial markets creates a disruption. It is happening in America, and it is happening in India. Those born after 1996 are called Gen Z. Those born between 1980 and 1996 are called Millennials. Their behaviour will increasingly influence markets.

Millennials and Gen Z

A report earlier this year by Deloitte, a global consulting firm, surveyed over 14,000 individuals around the world who fall in the millennials and Gen Z category. "Two-thirds of millennials and Gen Zs see wealth and income as unequally distributed in society," it said. Another survey in June 2021 by an American investment advisor Manole Capital Management found that an increasing number of young people are signing up to invest and trade in the stock market. India, too, has been witnessing a dramatic surge in the registration of new investor accounts. Not long ago, that number stayed around 2.5 crore demat accounts. It has jumped to over 6.5 crore in the past year

Robinhood investing

The American investment advisory firm that surveyed Gen Z found that over 40% of those surveyed are investing through Robinhood, a new age stockbroker. The company's website homepage has a tagline, 'Investing for everyone and offers commission-free investing. The popularity of this company during the pandemic could be explained by the need of the millennials and Gen Z to enable more people to create wealth and reduce inequality. The momentum is so strong that it recently went public in the US. The company did not use traditional bankers and roadshows to market the initial public offering. It conducted an online free-for-all event where founders answered questions from anyone. (Your columnist participated in the process.) Just like Robinhood, Zerodha, a Bengaluru-based company, has disrupted the stockbroking business in India. Similar firms have spawned quickly to tap into the potential.

Meme stocks

There is a lot of social media buzz on stocks. A lot of youngsters are investing based on discussions on social media. A meme stock is the one that witnesses a surge in trading volume and volatility based on information on social media. The action is a sort of a herd mentality and is barely based on the stock's fundamentals. It is the conversation in Whatsapp groups or on other social media groups that drives the share price of such companies.

WSB-Reddit

Among social media companies, discussion groups on Reddit are turning out to be the place to discuss the stock market for youngsters. In America, WSB or WallStreetBets is the most popular group. The dramatic action in shares of companies like Gamestop was attributed to WSB. A reading of the conversation here suggests user-generated trading ideas. That means anyone can suggest trading ideas. It is a bit of a double-edged sword. Users generate them and other users evaluate them. The background of those writing or correcting wrong ideas is irrelevant.

Fractional ownership

Fractional ownership allows you to buy your favourite a slice of high-priced share of your favourite company. You get benefits in proportion of your fractional ownership. Instead of buying a fully-priced share of Apple that trades at $ 146, you can buy a fraction of it for a lower price. So, if Apple declares a dividend of $0.20, you get paid proportionately. That is not allowed in Indian shares so far. However, it is a matter of time. Regulators all over the world would have to sit up and take notice.

What it means

If two-thirds of India's population belongs to the millennials and Gen Z category or under the age of 35, financial markets are all set to witness a dramatic shift over the next few years. The low-penetration of equity markets in India means that new investors would start their equity investing with these concepts.

Ways to manage debt investments

PANKAJ CHOPRA

MORE often than not, we end up putting funds available for low-risk investments into fixed deposits with banks or in government small savings schemes, some of which may even have tax benefits.

Given the conservative approach of Indian investors, a large part of their investments comprises debt or fixed income products. It, therefore, becomes important to understand what the options are. The debt markets are not limited to just fixed deposits, giving investors many other choices. While equity mutual funds have many advantages, debt oriented mutual fund schemes are more important as there are many investment alternatives like Commercial Papers, Corporate Bonds etc. that are not directly available to individual investors. This is primarily because such products deal in minimum ticket sizes of ₹5 crore and are more suited for institutional investment.

When we invest in a fixed deposit, we continue to get the annual rate of interest promised for the term of the deposit and do not care about whether interest rates are rising or falling. This is because a fixed deposit is not tradable. It will either mature or you will break the fixed deposit before maturity. However, conceptually, changes in interest rates impact all investments including these fixed deposits. Take for example, you place a 5-year deposit of ₹1 lakh with a bank at an interest rate of 7%. If after six months, the bank revises upwards the rate on 5-year fixed deposits to 8%, you now have an opportunity cost of 1% for the next 4.5 years. If the money was not already invested at 7%, you could have invested it today at 8%. Also, no one will buy your deposit at 7% because they can place a fresh deposit at 8%.

Therefore, if you need to sell the deposit, you will have to reduce the amount that you will take from the buyer so that s/he get a rate of 8% on their investment for the remaining 4.5 years. Thus, you will notice that as interest rates rise in the markets, the value of your existing deposits/investments declines. The converse is also true.

Debt oriented mutual funds pool together smaller investments made by a large number of investors and are able to participate in the institutional market. They, therefore, can buy and sell all the available debt instruments. Most of these instruments are tradable and the ups and downs of the price of individual securities determine the change in the net asset value of these schemes on a daily basis.

Overnight Funds, Liquid Funds, Ultra Short term Funds, Short Term Funds are short maturity bonds (like short term deposits).

Bond Funds and Income Funds hold longer maturity bonds and G Sec Funds probably have the longest maturity of the investments. It is important to know the maturity profile of the scheme that you are invested /intend to invest into. Once you are broadly aware of the maturity profile of various schemes, the even more important factor is to determine whether interest rates are expected to go up or down in the future. There are hundreds of factors that impact interest rates and one can only estimate how rates will move going forward. Based on this, you can choose short term products if rates are expected to go up, or longer term products if interest rates are expected to decline in the future.

Interest rates in India have been on a low for quite a while now, but it is anticipated that they will move up from the current levels.

What to do when you can't make decisions?

MONEY-WISE

FINANCIAL ADVICE

PV SUBRAMANYAM

writes at www.subramoney.com and has authored the best seller 'Retire Rich - Invest ₹ 40 a day'

IF you are an investor have you ever postponed an investment decision? If you are an investment advisor have you 'suffered' the indecision of a client? Has a client tested your patience? Have you wondered why this happens? Let us look at some of the reasons as to why people are not able to close some deals even after they tell you hey have made up their minds:

- Fear / Greed - Fear that the US market will fall or that the Indian market will do better than the US market! Imagine for those who are investing in different markets and different instruments, they are unable to decide whether to Invest and in which market.

The typical response is "market is too high" or "market is likely to fall" - very difficult to say how much is fear, and how much is Greed! So if the market is at 53,000 (Sensex) - they will find it difficult to make up their mind. It does not matter if the market goes to 39000, will they invest? Take a Guess.

- Too much choice - When people go to a Paratha shop with 130 types of Parathas, they go through the whole list and then order 'Aloo Paratha'. Similarly when you tell the prospective investor he can invest in Debt, Equity, Arbitrage, International debt, International equity, - and offer him/her 14 choices, the investor is lost. You have lost him in the 3rd fund offer itself. Decision making is stressful, so the brain switches off.
- The Proverbial Brother-In-Law! When an investor gets stressed he says "I will ask my.. xyz" - it could be wife, brother in law, banker, insurance agent, boss - take your pick. He may be using this as an excuse to get rid of the adviser at that point in time. That is all.

What are the solutions?

If you are a person who finds it difficult to make decisions, sit with your spouse (friend, parent, sibling, child - almost anybody) and go through all your investments. The best investments may already be there. Just add more money to one of the investments. There may be no need to buy any new instrument. If you have ₹3 lakh in one fund, adding another ₹45000 to the same fund may not be a bad idea.

If you are an investment consultant - give the investor lesser choice. Just offer Fund A or Fund B - with Fund C as a back up. That is all. If you show 23 funds, the investor is bound to be fatigued and not in a position to answer.

Sometimes it helps if you can show "what have you missed"—if she had invested ₹4 lakh in March 2020, it would have become say ₹7.5 lakh today! When you send such a message it has a good impact on a person for whom this amount is material. However if he/she has a net worth in crores, this example may not cut much ice. Decision making is not easy. Many people struggle with it, and one way to improve is by minimising the number of decisions that one has to make.

What have I done? Well I wear only white shirts and black pants for meetings. All my bills are automated for payments. My insurance payments, tax payments are made on the day I get a call for the payment. My investments happen through a SET of SIPs.

When you reduce the number of decisions, your stress goes down and you have freedom and time to make slightly more complex decisions.

Boxer injured while celebrating, out of Oly

Aidan Walsh has been forced out of his semifinal bout at the Tokyo Olympics after the Irish welterweight injured his ankle while celebrating his quarterfinal victory. Boxing officials announced on Sunday that Walsh did not attend the medical check and weigh-in before his scheduled bout with Britain's Pat McCormack, who advanced to the gold medal bout by walkover. Walsh, who is from Belfast, will still win a bronze medal.

Zverev beats Karen, clinches gold medal

Alexander Zverev brushed aside Karen Khachanov in straight sets to seal the men's singles title and win Germany's first tennis gold since 1992. The fourth seed, who ended Novak Djokovic's Golden Grand Slam bid in the semifinals, produced a dominant display to win 6-3, 6-1 after just 79 minutes at the Ariake Tennis Park.

Boxer sits on ring apron in protest

A French super heavyweight boxer sat on the Olympic ring apron in protest after he was disqualified from his quarterfinal bout because of an intentional head butt. Mourad Aliev reacted with outrage when referee Andy Mustacchio disqualified him with four seconds left in the second round. The referee determined Aliev had intentionally used his head to clash with British opponent Frazer Clarke, who had cuts near both of his eyes.

Six banished for breaking Covid rules

Organisers said they have banished six people, including two silver medallists from Georgia. Toshiro Muto, the games chief executive, said it was a 'clear and serious violation' of the so-called playbooks of health and safety rules for two Georgian judokas to go sight-seeing. Vazha Margvelashvili and Lasha Shavdatuashvili were seen near Tokyo Tower on Tuesday, after their events were finished.

PV Sindhu celebrates after winning her match against He Bingjiao on Sunday | AP

Shuttler Sindhu attains legendary status after winning second consecutive Olympic medal, gets the better of He Bingjiao of China in third-place playoff for bronze in Tokyo

SUPREME COURT

SWAROOP SWAMINATHAN
@ Chennai

THE world's greatest sporting icons do not need two names to inspire awe. Federer. Biles. Phelps. It's the case in India as well. Sachin. Anand. Sushil. One can safely add Sindhu to this list of giants. On Sunday, she didn't just stamp her legacy as much announce herself as one of the most distinguished candidates for an Indian GOAT. Her achievements in a sport stacked with multiple future Hall of Famers (seven of the top nine have at least one Worlds medal and all of the top four have an Olympic medal) is unreal. What puts Sindhu's efforts in GOAT territory is her big-game mentality, something that's un-Indian. Athletes here aren't known to make the biggest stage their backyard. Most consider the world stage an insurmountable obstacle. Sindhu sees them as a chore.

That's not an exaggeration. Consider this. She was 18 years and one month when she ascended the podium at the World Championships (Guangzhou) for the first time. It was 2013 and the sport was riding a high on Saina Nehwal's bronze in London. Save 2015 and 2020 (ruined due to the pandemic), she has won something every year. Guangzhou (2013), Copenhagen (2014), Rio de Janeiro (2016), Glasgow (2017), Nanjing (2018), Basel (2019) and Tokyo (2021). The Chinese domination ended. A monster from Spain appeared. Two energiser bunnies from Japan burst onto the scene. A magician from Chinese Taipei and a genius from Thailand also joined the wagon before the Chinese found a way again... through this all, Sindhu has not only stayed but become better. She has found answers and added tricks to her kitty in a way that has kept her relevant in a sport that historically favours change every four years. As a result, she has become just the third woman singles player after Susi Susanti (1992 and 1996) and Zhang Ning (2004 and 2008) to medal at consecutive Games.

And she will be the first to say that it has been one hard ride. In 2016, she was a young turk. Whatever she touched turned into bitcoin then. Now, not so much. There have been unanswered questions about her situation with P Gopichand and she is now an extremely private person. There is also her less than flattering record on Tour in the last few years. Coming into Tokyo, she had won 23 matches in 15 tournaments since that win at the World Championships in Basel. In a country that places a premium of results over process, that was viewed as a terrible record. A part of that process involved quality time at the Sports Science Institute in UK to better understand herself. Nutrition, diet, recovery... you name it, she spent time working on it.

That showed at the courts of the Musashino Forest Plaza. She has never looked in better shape, moved freely between the front and back and side to side, kept the bird in play and didn't appear fatigued even when Tai Tzu-Ying was literally sending her on a feather hunt on Saturday. Crucially, she has also added variations to her game. The deceiving drop from the back court, engaging opponents at the net, the half smash and learning lessons from previous defeats.

One of those lessons from that loss to Tai was to be more proactive. And she showed against He Bingjiao. She hit down the line smashes and wasn't afraid to kill long rallies if she had an opening. Even if some of Bingjiao's returns were conducive to Sindhu's long wing-span (an error Tai didn't make), they had to be put away and the two-time Olympic medallist used the crosscourt smash to make the southpaw reach further than normal. All these little things counted. There was a worry that she would face a hang-over from the semifinal. That worry quickly dissipated after she took a 4-0 lead in the first game. She never relinquished it. A hallmark of a big-game monster.

Just Sindhu things.

Father's pep talk after semifinal loss helped Sindhu recover

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Hyderabad

PV SINDHU was inconsolable after her semifinal loss against Taiwanese shuttler Tai Tzuying on Saturday. However, her father, PV Ramana, ensured she didn't lose her focus ahead of the bronze medal match against He Bing Jiao of China with his pep talk.

"Everybody will cry (after such loss). She had tears in her eyes but good that she recovered, made a comeback and won today (Sunday). Yesterday (Saturday), I told her 'you have given your best and concentrate on Sunday's match. Just think that you are giving me a gift and play on the court.'"

The father admitted it's painful for an athlete to play the third and fourth (place) match. "Though the pressure is there I am happy that she has won a medal for the country. Because generally what happens is that playing the third and fourth match is a very painful match. Yesterday, I motivated her a lot and thank god with blessings of everyone she has brought a medal." The motivation meant Sindhu became only the first Indian woman from the country to win two Olympic medals. "I am happy that she is the first Indian woman to win two consecutive medals at the Olympics — bronze and silver."

Speaking on the expectations before the Olympics, the father admitted that they were expecting a top finish from the shuttler. "No doubt we were expecting a gold medal. I am very happy as she had played well. Just forget it and concentrate as it will be a record. The Olympics is not a small event. Winning a gold, silver or bronze... medal is a medal. I am happy that she has got and given us happiness," he added.

Ramana also said he is planning to go to Delhi as Sindhu will arrive in the national capital on August 3. He is also confident that his daughter will feature in the next Olympics as well. "We have to plan, we have to work out. I trust Sindhu because she is focussed and she has that hunger to go and play and she enjoys the game."

Ramana thanked everyone who supported Sindhu in achieving her Olympic glory. "Firstly, I shall thank Park (her South Korean coach Park Tae Sang) who has taken great pain, the government of India, BAI, her supporters, everybody has given her encouragement, I am grateful to the media also."

Gopi hails 'awesome' Sindhu

Coach Pullela Gopichand termed Sindhu awesome for achieving the feat. "Congrats to our awesome Sindhu. While it is all due to the hard work by her and the team of coaches and support staff, I also want to express my gratitude for the support of the sports ministry, the Indian government, TOPS, SAI and BAI."

Satish's gladiator-like fight not enough

ANMOL GURUNG @ Chennai

THERE'S a certain charm about underdogs who punch above their weight to give a gutsy performance. Boxer Satish Kumar delivered a quintessential underdog's performance in the men's +91 kg bout on Sunday.

Facing World No 1 Bakhodir Jalolov, the quarterfinal bout was always going to be a mammoth test for the Indian. Moreover, he was not 100 per cent after having suffered a knock in his opening bout; a few stitches were required to deal with his injuries. And yet, he fought as though his life depended on the bout, enduring jaw-crunching blows, landing some heavy punches of his own.

It was clear as daylight that his much-taller opponent, a southpaw, was more refined. Satish — who was making his Olympic debut in Tokyo — was relentless, keeping him on his toes. But Jalolov showed why he's the top seed, keeping Satish at bay and delivering some heavy counters. Despite Satish's attacking display, Jalolov had done enough to pocket the opener.

The tale was more or less the same in the second essay. Sensing that he's behind, Satish continued to approach the contest with an attacking frame of mind. Punch after punch, he continued to make his rival dance around. Yet again, Jalolov calmly held firm, soaking in the pressure and delivering a heavy right hand of his own. From India's perspective, Satish was winning hearts but his gladiator-like fight was not enough to appeal to the judges, who voted in the Uzbek pugilist's favour.

In the decider, the boxers generally tend to tire out. Even though Satish had done plenty of legwork in the earlier rounds, he continued to chase his evasive rival. The contest was more or less out of his hands, but the Army man was not backing down. He eventually lost the bout 0-5, but had earned the admiration of Jalolov. After the customary end-of-the-bout ceremony, the Uzbek boxer raised the ropes at Satish's corner, as a mark of respect, for Satish to exit.

India high performance director, Santiago Nieva, was understandably disappointed with the result but took heart from Satish's performance. "Satish had the speed advantage and he was hoping to put pressure on him (Jalolov). That was our hope, but his opponent was too good. He used his reach very well and was punching very hard. Of course, Satish was able to land a few accurate punches here and there, but it was difficult," he said. "He (Satish) was saying it was hard to apply the pressure that he wanted. He also wanted to play on the counter but after losing the opening round, waiting for counters was not the option. It was difficult for him to execute the game plan," he added.

Before the start, Nieva was aware of the enormity of the task ahead of Satish. The injury that he suffered — he was forced to take a few stitches near his eye and his chin — made his task even harder. Despite recovering, he had been in discomfort for the last few days. "The Olympic medical authorities were at it and were helpful. He required a few stitches and put glue on. He had swelling because of the use of anesthesia, but that improved bit by bit. Obviously, he had that disturbing feeling because of some amount of pain," Nieva said.

Satish had made a steady recovery and the team had finalised only on Saturday that they'd challenge Jalolov and try to secure the medal.

"It healed pretty well. We always have to take into consideration the boxer's health. We all sat together yesterday (Saturday) and decided that we'll go for the bout and give our best. Satish passed the medical examination in the morning, and we were good to go."

Satish, who became the only male boxer from the country to win a fight in Tokyo, couldn't get a medal, but he can walk away with pride.

Satish had the speed advantage and he was hoping to put pressure on him (Jalolov). That was our hope, but his opponent was too good. He used his reach very well and was punching very hard.

Hubbard debut set to spark gender debate

AFP @ Tokyo

TRANSGENDER weightlifter Laurel Hubbard makes her Olympic debut in Tokyo on Monday, with the New Zealander's historic appearance igniting heated debate on one of sport's most divisive issues.

Hubbard was born male and competed as a man before transitioning to become a woman in her 30s, taking up the sport again after meeting the International Olympic Committee (IOC) guidelines for transgender athletes.

The IOC says she is the first openly transgender woman to compete at the Games, hailing it as a landmark moment for the Olympic movement. "Laurel Hubbard is a woman, is competing under the rules of her federation and we have to pay tribute to her courage and tenacity in competing and qualifying for the Games," IOC medical chief Richard Budgett told reporters in Tokyo. However, her presence in the women's +87kg category on the elite stage raises complex issues of bioethics, human rights, science, fairness and identity in sport. Supporters say her appearance is a victory for inclusion and trans rights. Critics argue she has an unfair advantage over female rivals due to physical attributes locked into her body during her decades as a male.

Debate on the issue is intense and sometimes vitriolic, with barbs flying from both sides online, prompting to New Zealand Olympic Committee's to take steps to shield Hubbard from social media trolls.

Female sporting advocates have expressed concern about including transgender competitors.

Medallists Lamont Marcell Jacobs (C), Fred Kerley (R) and Andre de Grasse | AP

100m: Jacobs is Italy's Bolt from the blue

AFP @ Tokyo

ITALY'S Lamont Marcell Jacobs outshone a field of unusual suspects to claim a shock Olympic gold in the men's 100 metres on Sunday, breaking retired Jamaican star Usain Bolt's 13-year hold on the blue-riband event. Jacobs, 26, timed a European record of 9.80 seconds, with American Fred Kerley taking silver in 9.84sec in one of the most understated major championship 100m races of recent times. Canada's Andre de Grasse, a bronze medallist at the 2016 Rio Games, repeated the feat in 9.89sec in Tokyo.

"It's a dream, it is fantastic. Maybe tomorrow I can imagine what they are saying, but today it is incredible," said Texas-born Jacobs, who until 2020 had never gone below the 10sec barrier. "It was my childhood dream to win an Olympic Games and obviously a dream can turn into something different, but to run this final and win it is a dream come true."

Kerley said that he barely knew Jacobs. "I raced him once, in Monaco," he said. "But I know nothing about him." De Grasse said he was happy with a personal best and another Olympic medal after a comeback from injury. "9.80 from the Italian guy, I didn't expect that," the Canadian added. "I thought my main competition would have been the Americans, but definitely he came to play."

The athletes were introduced in a dramatic light show – the stadium floodlights were shut off and 12 projectors cast 3D images of the world, zooming in to the Tokyo skyline, and then the name of each sprinter. The lights came back on, swiftly followed by a horrendous false start for Zharnel Hughes in lane four, the Anguilla-born Briton not even bothering to question his disqualification. Dressed in light blue singlet and lycra shorts, Jacobs, in lane three, made a good start, held his nerve through the drive phase and powered through to the line.

Jacobs joyously ran into the arms of Italian teammate Gianmarco Tamberi, who had just shared gold in the men's high jump and was waiting at the finish line.

"Being here together is something spectacular. I believe in him and believed in myself," beamed Jacobs. The race, run in stifling temperatures of 30 degrees Celsius (84 Fahrenheit), had a distinctly underwhelming build-up and feel to it as hot favourite Trayvon Bromell bombed out of the semi-finals in which China's Su Bingtian and Jacobs unexpectedly set Asian and European records respectively.

The Tokyo Olympics are the first since Athens 2004 to take place without Bolt, who went on to win three consecutive Olympic 100m titles in Beijing, London and Rio de Janeiro, as well as three straight 200m crowns. And for the first time since the 2000 Sydney Games, there was no Jamaican in the final, Bolt's long-time former teammate Yohan Blake failing to qualify from his semi-final.

The left-arm spinner had taken 18 wickets when England toured India in February and March this year but they suffered a 1-3 defeat. "Playing against India, who are such a strong side, in a five Test-match series, will tell us a lot about where we're at," said Leach.

It was about believing. Everyone believing in themselves was the key today. Everyone gave their 100 per cent today. We are so happy because we are reaching a semifinal after a long time. Still, the business hasn't finished yet. We still have two more games, so we need to focus and have our feet on the ground. The most important thing for the players right now is to concentrate on our next game against Belgium.

ROMANTIC BLUES

SWAROOP SWAMINATHAN @ Chennai

THE importance of a sporting event can be gauged by the number of casual onlookers that stop to look at it. At approximately 6.40pm IST, people on social media politely asked the score. How many minutes remaining? The score read India 2-1 Great Britain, with about five minutes remaining. At stake was a place in the semifinals of the Olympics, a place Indian hockey hasn't been to since the 1972 Games in Munich.

After multiple attempts and failures, it finally came down to hanging on for 5 minutes when Great Britain threw everybody forward. They even had a penalty corner with India down to ten men. But PR Sreejesh diverted the goal-bound effort to safety, like he had done all day. And all tournament to be honest. He has been the silent rock behind India rediscovering their mojo after the 1-7 loss against Australia.

With Manpreet Singh & Co under pressure with minutes remaining and just one goal in front, the Men In Blue made a spectacular jailbreak, going from coast to coast in search of glory. The first effort was repelled before the second, by an inspired Hardik Singh, sounded the board. This goal will be talked about for years to come. A pass set Hardik free with real estate in front of him. He left a lot of England players in his wake, danced one way, weaved through traffic before firing at the keeper, Oliver Payne. The ricochet fell kindly to Hardik who made space and fired a bullet into the bottom corner. It was the sound of lift-off. A sound of a burden being lifted, of giving themselves a chance to end 41 years of hurt, agony, heartbreak and, of late, apathy. It was the sound of a baggage being removed, of a chance at continuing the legacy of an era when the extent of India's Olympic ambitions started with H and ended with Y. It was the sound of finally getting things right on the grandest stage of them all. Sure, there is still the small matter of a semi-final with Belgium but this knockout win feels different.

The night at the Oi Hockey Stadium began so perfectly, you would have been excused if you had started dreaming as early as the 7th minute. England's Ian Sloane tried to dribble his way out of the Indian press in their own third. It was cut at the source, before Simranjeet fed in the excellent Dilpreet Singh who snuck in a cute finish through the legs of the keeper. First blood, India. Coach Graham Reid, who has done a marvellous job in his two plus years at the helm of Indian hockey, has gradually instructed the importance of control, even if having to concede the ball. He spent a long time on cutting out the mistakes and taking his players back to the basics during last year's lockdown. It showed. So India held back, allowed England a lot of the ball and decided to soak pressure. Such a strategy is risky and it almost proved so. Great Britain had two chances to equalise in the dying embers of the first quarters but Sreejesh was there both times just before the whistle blew. Seconds after the players regrouped for the second quarter, the possible became probable. It again originated from an England stick and the one-man Indian press of Dilpreet.

Liam Sanford tried an ill-advised pass to release a forward runner but Dilpreet intercepted the pass and fed Gurjant Singh who took his chance. Before the tournament, the relatively inexperienced forward line invited bigger scrutiny. Yet, here were those three combining to devastating effect. At approximately 6.45 pm, the casual onlookers wondered aloud. Who are they facing next? Are Belgium any good? Belgium are the world champions and the Olympic silver medallists but an inspired India will be a tough challenge.

Biles may take part in beam: Teammate

AFP @ Tokyo

GYMNASTICS star Simone Biles, who has withdrawn from four Olympic events over a debilitating mental block, will "probably" compete on the beam in what would be her last chance in Tokyo, US teammate MyKayla Skinner said Sunday. Biles dramatically pulled out of the team final last week, saying she was suffering from the "twisties", where gymnasts lose the ability to orient themselves in mid-air. She has since withdrawn from the all-around, floor, vault and uneven bar events.

Her decision to skip the vault competition allowed Skinner to take her spot and scoop a silver on Sunday. And the US gymnast said she believed the Tokyo Olympics wasn't over yet for Biles, who has openly talked about her struggles with her mental health during the Games. "She's still probably going to be competing," Skinner told reporters after the vault final ended.

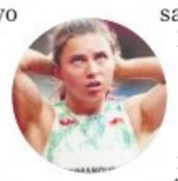
"I don't know for sure, it's kind of up to her," she said, but added "yeah I think so" when asked whether the four-time Olympic champion would appear on the beam on Tuesday.

Skinner said Biles was "one strong cookie" but that the situation "has definitely hit her really hard".

'Belarus forced athlete to leave Tokyo Games'

AFP @ MOSCOW

BELARUSIAN athlete Kristina Timanovskaya was forced out of the Tokyo Olympics after she publicly criticised sports officials of the ex-Soviet country, a non-governmental organisation said Sunday. The 24-year-old had criticised Belarus's athletics federation for entering her into the women's 400m relay in Tokyo without notice.



"It turns out our great bosses as always decided everything for us," Timanovskaya said on her Instagram stories that are no longer available. She later said in a separate Instagram post that she wouldn't have "reacted so harshly if I had been told in advance, explained the whole situation and asked if I was able to run 400 metres."

"But they decided to do everything behind my back," she added. The Belarusian Sport Solidarity Foundation (BSSF) – an organisation that supports opposition athletes –said on its Telegram on Sunday that "representatives of the Belarusian national team are deporting" Timanovskaya.

The group later said that the runner, who was due to compete in the 200m on Monday, was at a Tokyo airport and posted a video of her addressing the International Olympic Committee. "I am under pressure and they are trying to take me out of the country without my consent. I ask the International Olympic Committee to interfere," Timanovskaya said in the video. The Belarusian Olympic Committee said in a statement that Timanovskaya left the competition following medical advice because of her "emotional and psychological state". The BSSF quoted Timanovskaya as saying this was "not true" and she was not examined by doctors. The IOC said in a statement to AFP: "The IOC has seen the reports in the media, is looking into the situation and has asked the NOC (Belarus Olympic officials) for clarification." BSSF was founded last August by retired Belarusian swimmer Aliaksandra Herasimenia, as protests erupted after the disputed re-election of strongman President Alexander Lukashenko.

Italy's Gianmarco Tamberi is ecstatic after his victory in the men's high jump on Sunday | AFP

Barshim, Tamberi share gold in men's high jump

AFP @ Tokyo

QATAR'S Mutaz Barshim added Olympic gold to his world title as he shared the title with Italy's Gianmarco Tamberi in an unusual finish to the men's high jump on Sunday. Barshim and Tamberi recorded a best clearance of 2.37 metres while Maksim Nedasekau of Belarus also cleared that height to set a national record. Nedesekau though missed out on a share of the gold due to an earlier failure.

For Barshim, 30, it completes a full house of Olympic medals having taken bronze in London in 2012 and silver in Rio five years ago.

Tamberi added Olympic gold to a world indoor and a European title, both in 2016 and celebrated exuberantly despite the absence of spectators at this pandemic-affected Games. The 29-year-old collapsed to the ground and rolled around in ecstasy. He recovered his composure briefly before launching into more histrionics when his compatriot Lamont Marcell Jacobs stunned the sprinting world by winning the Olympic 100 metres title.

Barshim and Korean Woo Sanghyeok both got over 2.35m at the first attempt — the Qatari yelling out with joy and beating his chest during an entertaining contest.

Woo's celebration was equally flamboyant as the 2018 Asian Games silver medalist ran over to his coach to slap hands after setting a new national record.

Brandon Starc, brother of Australian cricketer Mitchell Starc, joined them with a clearance of 2.35m bringing his watching Australian teammates to their feet including one who had attached a sign to his shirt saying "Brandon Starc's roommate".

He was alas to go no further. Barshim upped the ante clearing 2.37m at his first attempt sending his dark glasses flying Nedasekau tried to get the watching athletes and coaches in the stand worked up to create an atmosphere in the 68,000-capacity venue.

It worked a treat for him as he joined Barshim with a first attempt clearance at 2.37m. Tamberi too cleared it. However, 2.39m became a height too far for the trio of medalists. Barshim went closest with his third attempt. After knocking off the bar he gave a rueful shake of the head and applauded the onlookers. With the title at stake as Tamberi jumped last, Barshim still found it within himself to applaud him as he prepared to launch himself at it — moments later the pair hugged as joint winners.

Rojas sets WR in women's triple jump

TOKYO: Venezuela's two-time world champion Yulimar Rojas set a new world record as she won Olympic gold in the women's triple jump on Sunday. Rojas jumped 15.67 metres on her sixth and final jump in Tokyo, smashing the previous best of 15.50m set by Ukraine's Inessa Kravets in 1995. It was the first world record of the Tokyo Olympics athletics programme.

SWIMMING

Five-star Dressel joins elite Olympic club

AFP @ Tokyo

CAELEB Dressel powered to his fifth swimming gold medal on Sunday as the United States won their duel in the pool with Australia.

Dressel dominated the men's 50m freestyle final, setting a Olympic record of 21.07sec, and then returned to help his team smash the world mark in the men's 4x100m medley relay.

The other undoubted star of the pool was Emma McKeon, who finished with four golds to become the first woman to win seven swimming medals at a single Games.

McKeon provided a golden finish when she helped Australia to the women's 4x100m medley relay crown, less than 40 minutes after winning the 50m freestyle.

US swimmer Robert Finke touched first in the men's 1500m freestyle to make it a distance double after winning the 800m earlier in the meeting.

The United States ended with 11 gold in the pool, two ahead of fierce rivals Australia, whose nine golds marked their best-ever showing.

Dressel, 24, didn't get close to matching Michael Phelps' eight-gold haul at Beijing 2008 but he joins just four other swimmers with at least five wins at a single Games.

"I'm proud of myself," said the American, who also won two relay golds at the 2016 Rio Games. "I think I reached what my potential was here at these Games. I'm really good at hiding my emotions," Dressel said. "I can put a pretty good show on before each race, but once I shut it off, it just floods out," he added.

McKeon, 27, became just the second woman to win seven medals at one Olympics in any sport, after Ukrainian gymnast Maria Gorokhovskaya in 1952, and is now Australia's most successful Olympian, with five gold medals and 11 overall.

"I look at the athletes that have gone before me and have been so impressed and inspired by what they've done but I've never been into the stats and medal counts," she said.

"But to be in that kind of company, it's an honour and I know I've worked hard for it."

DAY'S DIARY

Positron discovered

American physicist Carl D Anderson discovered the positron, or positive electron, the first known particle of antimatter, on this day in 1932

IN HIS CHAMBER

He built a cloud chamber surrounded by a large electromagnet, causing the paths of ionising particles to bend into circular paths. He then measured those curves to determine the sign of the charge

NOBEL PRIZE IN PHYSICS

On viewing a clear photo of an upward-moving particle with mass similar to the electron, he knew he had discovered the 'positive electron'. He was awarded the Nobel Prize for this discovery in 1936

CONFIRMING THE THEORY

Anderson published his research in September 1932. It was confirmed by experimenters, in 1933 by Patrick MS Blackett and GPS Occhialini

Cancelled shows and selling music tracks to OTT projects, Bengaluru-based musical bands are struggling to manage their financial and social challenges

GLOOMY TUNES

Swarathma band

SANATH PRASAD

AS auditoriums and other place of social gathering are now allowed to open up with reasonable restrictions, music artistes feel there is still a long road to recovery. Bengaluru-based musical bands are facing the wrath of the pandemic, impeding their social and economic growth in the entertainment industry. Some musical bands are looking at new ways to earn income, besides performing online shows, while some are just waiting for the restrictions to relax as they pin their hopes on the vaccination drive. Musical bands also believe that many blue-collar workers like sound engineers, light men, logistics personnel, are the most affected of the lot as stage shows serve the primary source of livelihood for them.

Swarathma, a Bengaluru-based music band observes that there is an increase in the selling of music tracks to corporates for advertisement. Jishnu Dasgupta, a bass guitarist in the band says "After the pandemic, a lot of musical band are selling their tracks to OTT projects, corporate advertisements to keep their creative and economic space active. This trend has specially increased after the lockdown. We sold one of our musical tracks Beta Sweater Pehno to Amazon series The Family Man and Khul ja re to an Apple advertisement."

Online shows hardly give us any economic relief but it helps us to take the music to a wider audience," says Dasgupta.

On the other hand, Beat Gurus, another city based band has hardly made business since the first wave of the pandemic. "We had little hopes of performing after the first wave of the pandemic but we lost all hopes after the second wave. It had a devastating effect on us. We easily lost up to some eight events which were valued at least ₹7-8 lakhs. We really doubt if the audience will be in the mood to celebrate when they come back to live events, given that the second wave proved to be fatal to everybody," says Prashanth Muralidhar, who plays the Djembe, a West African instrument for the band. Further, he said that fundraiser events like 'Togetherness Project', hosted by Karnataka Event's Management Association did give relief, especially to the blue-collar workers.

Varijashree Venugopal, an independent musician and a singer and flute player for world fusion band Chakrafonics believes that music show thrives on people's participation without which the essence is lost. "We are now recording our music in empty auditoriums for our upcoming music festival 'Kaalarnava'. Without the audience, we feel a big chunk of entertainment is lost. Close to nine music tours of mine were cancelled owing to the travel bans. Individually, we are recording songs, but as a band it has been difficult. I feel after the social gathering restrictions are relaxed, we, as artistes need 10 times more energy to catch the audience's attention," says Venugopal.

Praveen, D Rao, an independent music artiste and who formed the Karnataka Artistes Association (KAA) says, "Performing artistes and music shows were the first to be hit due to lockdown and probably the last one to come back during the unlock phase. We established the KAA to keep the livelihood of many aristes stable. Members of the associations including technicians, music artistes, sound engineers were ensured with health covers, medical insurance services, groceries, and food essentials across Karnataka."

Here's why Bengalureans are taking up cycling these days

Cycling through Covid

SHRIYA RAJACHANDRA

SIGHTING a cyclist on the roads of Bengaluru has become a common sight. With the imposition of two lockdowns, cycling seems to have taken over as a new hobby. We speak with cyclists from across the city to lay off the land of the current cycling world.

Talking about the growing trend of cycling in the city, Vidya Chandran, founder of Spokes Women (an all-women cycling community), suggests that the number of people cycling on the road during the 2020 lockdown was more compared to 2021's lockdown. She believes that, in the past year, there has been an increase in the number of cyclists on the road, ranging from children to adults. She says, "Cycling gave a sense of activity because gyms were closed. It was far safer because you were not in contact with anyone else while riding, for you could always ride alone."

Cycling during the lockdown meant being witness to the empty and clean streets of Bengaluru, a rare sight for the citizens of the city. For India's walking violinist, Dr Aneesh Vidhyashankar, the best part about cycling during a lockdown were the traffic-free roads and a clean city. "I have been cycling for many years now, but I enjoyed cycling in the city, the most during the second lockdown. It was a way to de-stress. I started posting pictures and after looking at the photos, people living away from India felt nostalgic and fondly remembered the old Bengaluru," he says.

Aneesh believes that cycling is the way forward although, from a safety point of view, cycling is a very difficult affair in India. He says, "Cyclists abroad have the right of way, you don't get to mess with them. But here, we don't have the infrastructure, so cycling in the city is difficult with all the traffic and roads." While cycling keeps Jonathan Clyde D'silva, fit both mentally and physically, cycling has taught him that long journeys might not be the best but the destination is worth it.

"In terms of personal growth, cycling has taught me a sense of togetherness and how two random cyclists can just become friends because their destination is the same," he says.

For Jeslyn George, a resident of Bengaluru, cycling is a fun way to stay active and bond with people, "it is a win-win situation". She also finds cycling liberating and empowering. "When we went for a 100 km ride, I was the only woman in the group. One of the cycles got punctured, so we went to a village to get the cycle fixed. A group of women and young girls were questioning me and one of them called me a 'Superwoman'. Such incidents make you feel good and it is empowering."

- Place your left hand in line with your right toes and left shoulder.
- Raise your right arm with fingers spread out.
- Shift your weight on the left hip by leaning forward with your chest. Left foot and knee must face the direction of the chest.

'TECH THIS' ROUTE TO QUARANTINE CARE

Check out the new app that aims to make medical tracking easier

KANNALMOZHI KABILAN

IF there's one thing the pandemic has changed the world over, it's the status quo that we had all taken for granted. Especially in the way we handle our healthcare needs; be it the over-the-counter drugs we relied on for every ailment or the family doctor who was trusted to be available when you needed them. As much as the virus has presented one too many challenges, sector after sector has managed to counter that with innovative solutions. Joining this short period of proud history is Quarantine Log, an app that promises to be a diligent guide for you and your doctor as you navigate the infection in isolation.

The app was born out of necessity for Shrayas Rajagopal. Just this year, his parents and in-laws tested positive for Covid and it fell upon him and his wife to care for them — keep track of vitals, communicate the same to the doctor and keep the history accurate. But with all of this happening on WhatsApp or Excel sheets, it got pretty tedious quite fast. "There wasn't one place where we could have access to all this information. It got even more difficult for the doctor because one doctor was seeing four patients. So it was very difficult for the doctor to keep track of the history. As far as they understand it, Covid moves in a certain fashion (irrespective of the variant). So what they would like to know is how the movement is — over a few hours or days. Putting all this together, we decided to build an app for it," he shares.

Tracking made easy

The head of all the engineering efforts at Logic Soft, a software solutions firm in Chennai, Shrayas had just the resources for the job. Quarantine Log is a simple medical history tracking app that lets you record and store details of multiple patients. From temperature to oxygen saturation, from blood tests to medicines administered, everything gets recorded with the time and date. The current status and the history is made available to the doctor. One place to keep track of it all. "It can manage multiple family members within the application. The app is also localised and we're starting with Tamil language. This will broaden the access to more people," he says. User access tests with not particularly tech savvy people gave them quite positive results and allowed them to address parts of the app that were not user friendly, he adds. A feature they are trying to get ready in time of launch — hourly reminders to update the recording of vitals — is also a direct result of the pilot tests.

While app fatigue is a common concern for any user, Quarantine Log is designed to be a short term, period-specific solution and hence will bypass that concern, he suggests. And the pilot tests seem to indicate the same. DG Badarinath, project chairman of Rotary Bangalore Peenya Trust, reports that the app "fit the gap that it aimed to fill".

Doctors who tried it out, too, have only positive reviews. "The app is very good to keep a tab on all clinical and lab parameters at one place for the home care/ COVID care centre patients. Its uniqueness is that it helps in giving a neat and precise information more so to doctors as they are hard pressed for time during such periods," says Dr Basavaraj Kuntoji, consultant physician Manipal Hospital, Bengaluru.

While Covid-related needs may have fuelled the creation of the app, Shrayas hopes that is would go on to serve a few other kinds of patients in the long run. "My friend found that this could be useful for his father who recently had a lung transplant. The surgery required him to share vitals and health status with the doctor periodically. And both of them were having trouble keeping track of the history. This app could potentially solve those problems. And do the same in geriatric care," he surmises. Soon enough, there are plans to add features to address these needs, he adds.

The app will be available for all Android devices this week. An iOS version will follow soon.

> The data on this app stays here. It is not shared with any resource or third party other than who the user chooses to share it with. Even we developers have no access to it. We're also in the plans to open source the app, so that people can look into it and know we don't anything malicious.

Skincare Routine Less is More!

PAIRED WITH PANACHE
Anuja Pandey

(The author is social media influencer @loftyspectrums and a lifestyle coach)

ARE you the type who wakes up every morning, worried and wanting to do so much for your skin? Do you have guilt pangs gnawing away at you every time you look in the mirror?

Fret not, your skincare regime doesn't have to be an impassable labyrinth, it can be simplified to make it more manageable and consistent. Here's a step by step guide to making your life easy.

1 Get Organised - To begin with, make a list of skincare problems you actually have, for example you have acne or pigmentation or dark spots or just plain dry skin. Look for products with Vitamin C in it, which is a super ingredient to remove your spots, dullness and any uneven skin tone.

2 Know your skin type- It is very important to understand your skin type to invest in the right product. How do you determine that? Very simple, just notice how your skin feels right after you wake up.

People with acne prone skin, are recommended to use products with Salicylic Acid. For dry skin concerns, Hyaluronic Acid will save the day!

RJ and content creator Jane says, "So into the lockdown, I have switched to using Ayurvedic skin care. Every night, I use a nourishing night cream. Every alternate day, I use a peach clarifying and refining peel off mask which totally refreshes my skin, and minimises pores and a day Cream with a 40+ SPF I drink eight glasses of water, work out a minimum of five days a week and never ever forget to keep that big smile on. Voila- Happiness, love and radiant skin."

3 Choose Hero Products – Eliminate products that serve only one purpose, instead invest in all-rounders, for example, replace moisturizer with serum. A serum is an all-rounder that can easily cater to your skin's need for hydration while priming it and leaving it with a soft dewy finish. The product formulation of serum has smaller molecules that work together to penetrate the skin to a degree that facial creams or moisturizers don't.

4 Budget – It's important to plan and create financial demarcations so you don't let your skincare budget eat into other important components of your living and lifestyle.

5 Stay Positive & Hydrate – Whoever said beauty is only skin deep, was referring to staying connected with our intrinsic goodness and richness of character. While it's important to take care of what we put on our skin, it's equally important to feed our mind with the right ingredients.

Dr Aparna Santhanam, Skin Expert on ITC Charmis says, "Skincare routine planning is often perceived to be a daunting task, which is why it's important to have a fair assessment of one's requirements.

First step towards getting a good skin care routine is to make an effort to understand the ingredients, decide your budget and most importantly choose well researched hero products. I recommend going for products that are all-rounders for e.g. a serum is a multipurpose product that can easily eliminate the need for a hydrator or moisturizer; it is more efficacious and budget friendly. This apart, skincare is an inside-out job, so make sure to stay hydrated and positive, your inner radiance invariably reflects on your face".

The genesis of every confusion

ARE YOU GAME?

@quofles

(This economics graduate spends her leisure time preparing for the zombie apocalypse)

Genesis Noir is weird. Most of the game is utterly incomprehensible. But there's also something about it that makes you want to stick around. A hope that you will understand something at the end, and that it will all make sense at some point.

The short review is that the resolution doesn't happen. The only redemption is in the fact that it didn't take very long to finish the game. A film reviewer would probably have more to interpret from its trippy imagery, and its story visualised in a vacuum. When I say vacuum, I mean both the literal void, as well as an absence of dialogue or written text to supplement what I visually experienced.

This explanation started out all wrong. I'm confusing the reader in a way not dissimilar to how the game confused me. Let me restart. Genesis Noir is a point-and-click game available on the PC. It comes free as part of the Xbox Game Pass.

The story is about a watch peddler "No Man". He witnesses "Miss Mass", a singer at a popular club, being shot by "Golden Boy". The bullet is on its way to its target. But No Man wants to save Miss Mass. He attempts to do this, a different way. An improv battle with a jazz man, helping a scientist with the Large Hadron collider, and voluntarily jumping into a black hole are just few of the ways in which No Man tries to stop the scene of horror from happening.The game continuously intersperses theories about the origin of the universe alongside very terse visualisations of what happened in the real storyline of the game. The obvious best part of the game is the rhythmic jazz music. The game really wins by forcing you to finish it — the ridiculous logic of the puzzles keep you persevering, with your interest dangling on the thread of the logic stitching itself together, much like how the universe did. I rate the game 3 blackholes out of one galaxy.

WHAT'S NEW

King's Bounty II

Fans of turn-based-tactical games have had precious little to cheer recently, but King's Bounty II might change all that. I never played the original King's Bounty, but I loved the 2008 spinoff, King's Bounty: The Legend. If this can capture some of the brilliance of the old Heroes of Might & Magic series, it'll be very good indeed.

Ghost of Tsushima: Director's Cut

Ghost of Tsushima was one of my favourite games of 2020, which is why I'm looking forward to the release of the Director's Cut. It's got the usual feature updates and bells and whistles but, most importantly, it includes a new expansion with new gameplay content.

A MIGHTY BATTLE

As the commander of a mercenary company in BattleTech, you lead armed combat robots, take charge of finances, and work through the campaign

BattleTech isn't a new game — it came out in 2018, in fact. However, like Civilization 6 which I wrote about recently, it's only gotten better in the years since, thanks to a stream of additional content. Is this the best giant-mech simulator out there? Spoiler — yep.

BattleTech casts you in the role of a commander of a mercenary company of battlemechs — giant bipedal heavily-armed combat robots. As such, you'll not only command your mechs in battle but you'll also take charge of your company's finances and upgrades. You'll also be called upon to make decisions as you work your way through the campaign.

As for gameplay, BattleTech is inevitably going to draw comparisons with the new XCOM games; however, that's no bad thing and BattleTech does enough to set itself apart. In a game like this, the combat needed to be really good; thankfully, it is. You'll have to juggle cover, various terrain types, facing and your mech's rising heat levels as you face off against a variety of enemy mechs, vehicles and static defenses. And that's without even mentioning the various types of mech you'll command — from speedy scouts with jump jets and paper-thin armour to up-close-and-personal brawlers who eschew fancy weapons in favour of a good old-fashioned giant robot punch.

Managing your company's finances runs deeper than you might expect, and the early struggle to stay afloat is genuinely worrying. Whatever profit you make from missions is soaked up by repairs to damaged mechs, salaries and various other debts that show up from time to time. You've also got to juggle the need to constantly upgrade your mechs to ensure that you can go toe to toe with more powerful opponents, but a mech that's being refitted is a mech that you don't have access to. Being forced to take on a mission with some underpowered mechs and novice mechwarriors because your veterans are injured feels exactly like XCOM, and also exactly in character for a rag-tag bunch of mercenaries.

Missions can last well over an hour, and it's a kick to the gut when you make a small mistake at the very end of one and see your best battlemech blow up because of it. Although the AI isn't particularly innovative — it does tend to favour the 'swarm' approach - it will choose its battles (fighting near defenses) and is absolutely ruthless at punishing mistakes. This is no walk in the park, but that does make it extremely rewarding when your plans come off.

Since release, Paradox Interactive have added a number of new features to the game — there are new mechs, new biomes, new mission chains and deployment types and even urban environments. All of these ensured that BattleTech felt almost like a new game when I went back to it recently, and it's a testament to both how good the basic formula is as well as the support it's received from Paradox.

If you like turn-based-strategy games, you need to play this one.
